RAIL STRIKE TRUCE PARLEY FIZZLES

Red Terrorism Sweeps Korea

Election Creates Turmoil

Voting to Begin As Scheduled

SEOUL, Korea — (AP) — Communist terrorism, arson and sabotage, aimed at wrecking Monday's election, hit South Korea this week-end as expected.

Timed with the outbreaks was a Russian announcement of plans to abandon the occupation of North Korea immediately.

The Soviet commander frankly said his move was an attempt "to make American troops withdraw from (South) Korea simultaneously."

American military authorities said, however, there were no indications that the Russians were actually packing. One called it "just another propaganda shot" by the Russians.

The Americans have rejected previous Soviet proposals for simultaneous withdrawal on the grounds that this would hand all Korea over to the Russian-organized North Korean army.

Nearly 8,000,000 South Korean voters faced the apparent prospect of braving bullets and beatings from communist-led gangs to cast their ballots in Monday's election

Military intelligence reported three persons were killed up to early Saturday night; at least 22 locomotives were damaged or wrecked by saboteurs; many telephone and telegraph wires were cut; a power station was damaged; and there were many fires. Four newspaper offices were burned out, including three in Seoul, the capital.

Communist labor leaders called widespread strikes in government offices, banks, schools and industries. But the week-end holiday minimized them.

U. S. GENERAL FIRM

More violence was expected, but Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, military governor of South Korea, declared in a press statement:

"I am determined that an anarchic minority shall not prevent the majority of the Korean people from voting . . . ."

The election, under American supervision and United Nations observation, is to name 200 members of an assembly to create a Korean government.

The Russians who occupy the north half of the country, refused to have any part of the original plan for nationwide elections leading to Korea's independence. The divided nation is a former possession of Japan.

The way has been left open in the south for eventual northern participation in the future government. The Russian-controlled north, however, has started forming its own government, also designed to cover all Korea.

More than two thirds of the population of about 30,000,000 live in the American zone.

Since early February, about 400 persons in South Korea have died in sporadic, sharp attacks by roving bands on police stations, election headquarters and the homes of rightists.

The fighting has been vicious, with rifles, swords, knives, spears, clubs and even stones as weapons Many victims have been dismembered.

GI Murdered In Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP)—An American soldier was hit over the head and killed Saturday by an unknown assailant. Robbery apparently was the motive.

The army newspaper Stars and Stripes identified the soldier as S/Sgt. Raymond O. Switzer, 35, of Lake Orion, Mich. U. S Army agents said they were investigating but declined further details.

The attack occurred in a washroom of a German railroad station at Kassel.

ATHENS—(AP)— War Minister George Stratos said last night the Greek army had found the bodies of 40 babies strangled by guerrillas during a retreat across Ghiona mountain early last week.

Oberlin Swings To 'Van'

OBERLIN —(AP)— Oberlin college's mock Republican convention, which has forecast the GOP presidential nominee nine times since 1860, last night named Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan as its 1948 candidate for president.

The veteran senator became the standard bearer of the student-delegates on the fifth ballot, rolling up 715 votes, 168 more than necessary for the nomination.

He took the lead on the second ballot in heated jousting with Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

After Vandenberg's winning total was announced, the mock convention unanimously named him the party candidate by acclamation

The delegates settled down to presidential balloting after several hours of wild demonstration and vote-swapping earlier last night.

"Alabama" cast 14 votes for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in opening the first roll call at 10:20 p.m. (EDT).

DIVIDED ON POLICY

Delegates earlier called on the United States to renew efforts to deal peacefully with the Soviet Union, overriding a large minority.

The argument was over a five-point foreign affairs plank of the make-believe platform for the GOP.

Though it finally passed, 476 to 349, dissenters in a number of delegations demonstrated in favor of a stiffer policy against Russia," recognizing basic conflicts."

The foreign affairs plank asked for:

(1) An immediate conference of high officials of the United States and Russia.

(2) An offer to turn over the United States' atom bomb stockpile and plants to the United Nations once an agreement on the international control of atomic energy is reached.

(3) Encouragement of cultural exchange with Russia.

(4) Encouragement of the study of the Russian language and civilization.

(5) State department scholarships to Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia.

On the labor plank, the delegates favored the Taft-Hartley law, but proposed repeal of a provision requiring union officers to sign non-communist affidavits.

Mansfielder Receives 1st Bonus Check

Believed to be the first state bonus check received by a Richland county World War II veteran, was reported yesterday in the hands of Joe Sanders, a disabled American Veteran member.

Sanders, who resides at 122 East Fourth street, is an interior decorator by profession.

However, Mrs. Della Cochran of the Soldiers and Sailors Relief commission warned other veterans not to be too anxious to receive their checks. She said that, to her knowledge, Sanders was the first county veteran to receive payment so far.

Mrs. Cochran said that checks are now being processed at the rate of 2,000 per day from the Columbus compensation office and that the applications are being taken in the order filed. Payment is expected to be stepped up to 3,000 checks per day within the month

Taft Raps Outlawing Of Reds

Takes Opposite View to Stassen

MILWAUKEE — (AP) — Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said last night he doubts that it would be wise to ban the communist party.

"As a matter of policy, it is somewhat doubtful whether we gain much by outlawing communism and driving the organization underground," said Ohio's "favorite son" candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Taft thus took a position similar to that of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York. Dewey has differed sharply on the issue with the other of the most active candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, Harold E. Stassen.

Stassen favors banning the party. He told a Washington news conference Saturday that "stopping infiltration of communists may be one of the keys toward stopping World War III." Dewey, campaigning in Oregon, has described Stassen's proposal as totalitarian.

Taft said:

"Under our constitution, we cannot and should not make it illegal for an American citizen to think communism or express his opinions so long as he does not advocate a violent overthrow of the government." He gave his views in a speech prepared for the executives club of Milwaukee.

FAVORS FREEDOM

The battle against communism can be won only by advancing the principles of free government, the senator argued.

He criticized what he called the "irreparable and destructive results" of the foreign policies of the Roosevelt and Truman administrations.

"We seem to have been dominated by a complete inferiority complex to Russia," Taft continued. "Whatever they asked, they received and gave nothing in return. The administration and a good many prominent Republicans, misled by the Administration's attitude, urged financial assistance to Russia as late as 1947."

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) and the Republican congress "have practically forced the administration into a definite position against communism," Taft said.

Dewey Ends Oregon Push

BEND Ore — (AP) — Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York wound up a week of campaigning in Oregon Saturday and his efforts brought Harold E Stassen on the run for a head-on clash for the state's Republican votes.

Stassen announced he would hurry back to Oregon next Friday —three days ahead of schedule— to compete directly with the New York governor right down to the time the state's primary polls open May 21.

It will be Stassen's fourth visit since last October. On Friday, May 14, he will speak in Portland. On the same day Dewey will be in Portland for a luncheon speech and a radio broadcast.

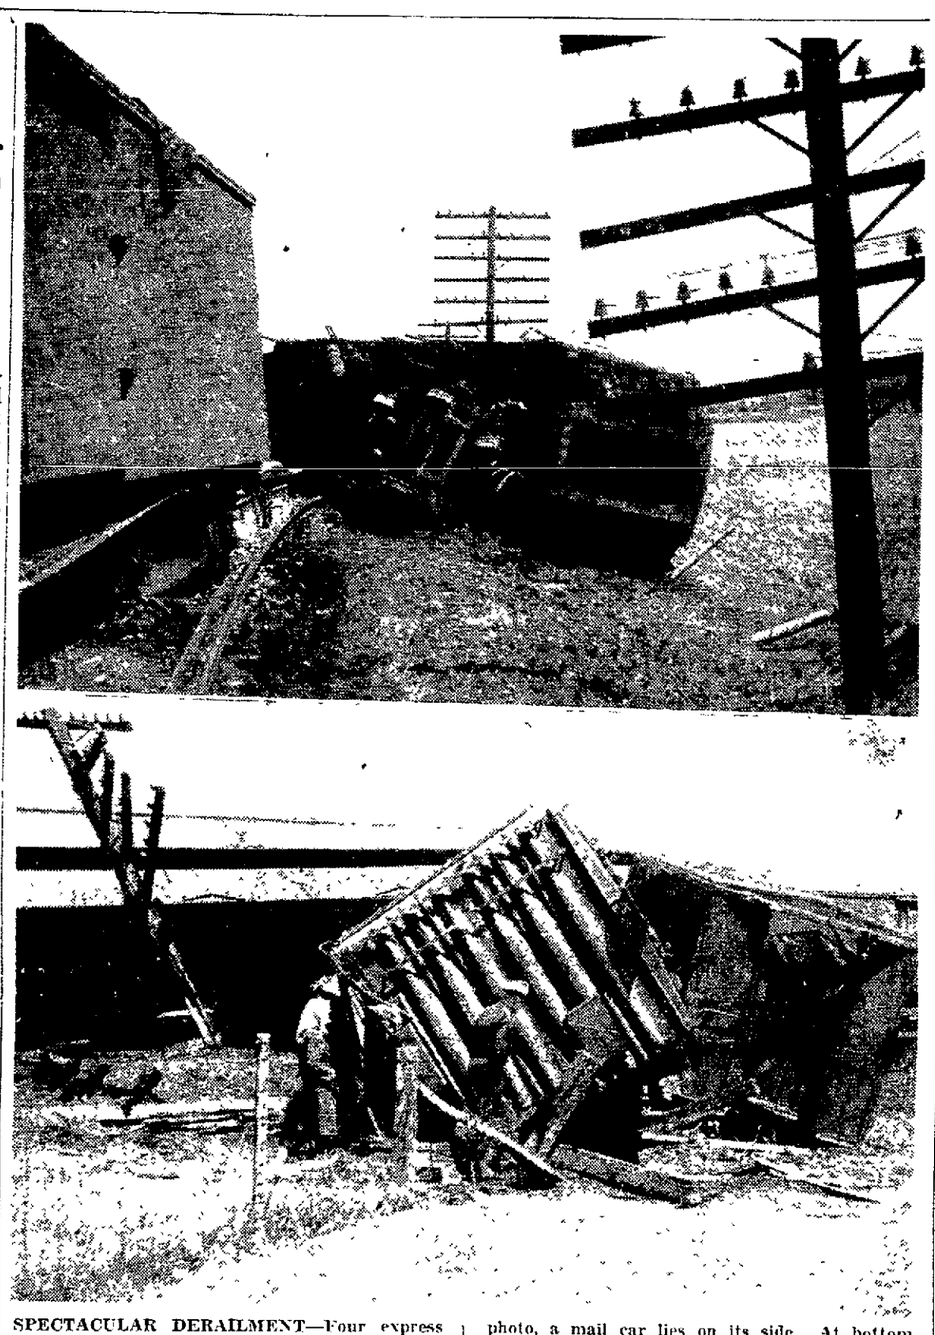
Stassen said Friday night that he was accepting a Dewey challenge to a debate Paul Lockwood Dewey's secretary, replied that "the story of the alleged challenge is something which was concocted out of thin air."

Executions To Continue

ATHENS —(AP)— Constantine Rentis, minister of public order, said Saturday the halting of the executions of prisoners by the Greek government would be an admission that "terrorism" pays.

Rentis denied that 152 persons were executed in Greece on Tuesday of this week. He said 61 were executed for legal crimes this week.

Twenty-four military executions were officially announced this week, and scores of others were scheduled for Thursday.



SPECTACULAR DERAILMENT—Four express and mail cars toppled onto the right-of-way of the New York Central railroad yesterday at Vernon Junction, near Shelby, when 10 cars of a 13-car Cleveland-bound train were derailed. Little Corn In Ground

Plenty of Time to Plant, Ganyard Says

Few Richland county farmers have planted corn, and they probably are sorry this week end that they were in a hurry.

Corn is a warm weather crop, withstanding little cold in the ground or after it has come up.

County Agent George B. Ganyard said the ideal planting time in the Richland area is between May 10 and 25. There is plenty of time left unless there should be a prolonged wet spell this month, he said.

He said corn takes between 105 and 115 days to reach maturity, depending on the variety of the plant.

Corn seeded in ground that is wet and cold rots, forcing the farmer to re-plant. If the tender plants show above the earth, a frost or freeze could kill them.

County farmers are likely to get their crop in much earlier this spring than last year when the cold, wet spring delayed some planting until June. Part of the 1947 crop failed to mature before frost arrived in the fall

Playful Orangutan Upsets Train Crew

Called upon to handle everything from pedigreed dogs to caskets being shipped for burial, railroaders along the line from Mansfield to Toledo found yesterday that a 125-pound orangutan on the loose was just a little too much.

And it wasn't until a fire department rescue crew, five policemen—one armed with a shotgun—and Toledo Zoo officials were mustered at the Pennsylvania station in Toledo that the situation was brought under control.

The playful little fellow broke out of his cage while passing through Mansfield on a Pittsburgh to Detroit run and none of the trainmen felt up to the task of wrestling it back into its cage.

He ran along hand rails in the car and annoyed the engineer by tugging at the emergency cord.

The train made several stops to unload baggage but sufficient help could not be mustered to trap the monkey.

Conductor J. W. Brown dropped a message at Mansfield at 1 p. m. requesting assistance from the Toledo zoo or anyone else who felt qualified to get the passenger back where he belonged.

At Toledo the animal finally was netted and returned to its cage. It was en route to the Detroit zoo

90,000 Arabs Flee City of Jaffa

JAFFA, Palestine — (AP) — Jaffa, the largest Arab city in Palestine a few days ago, now is a forsaken hostage of the Jewish state.

If it were not for British tanks and artillery—all due to leave next Saturday—a corporal's guard of Jews could march through Jaffa today without firing a shot.

Sandbagged Arab gunposts are deserted. Less than 100 Arab civilians are to be seen dazedly wandering in the streets. They are the hungry, impoverished remnants of a population which numbered 90,000 until two weeks ago.

The Jews control the territory around Jaffa to a depth of 10 miles. No Arab vehicles can enter or leave the city without passing within close range of Jewish machineguns and mortars.

A few score Arab refugees are boarding two small coastal sailing vessels in the ancient harbor, the last of an Arab exodus unequalled in the modern history of the Holy Land.

Along docks, where once Lebanese cedar was brought to build Solomon's temple, $10,000,000 worth of foreign imports are under guard of Royal Irish fusiliers. They have shot 22 Arab looters in the past two nights.

"The Jews will take over here in five minutes when we pull out," said a junior officer of the fusiliers. "They will find goods worth a king's ransom Most of it was consigned to Jewish merchants in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem but never got delivered because of the Arab boycott."

U. S. to Move First Class Mail By Air

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—(AP)—An assistant postmaster general said Saturday the postoffice department would move first class mail by airplane if the railroad strike becomes effective Tuesday.

Paul Aiken, second assistant postmaster general, said probably a weight limit would be imposed temporarily on first class mail.

"Special Provision," he added "will be made for the transportation of medicines, serums and essential medical supplies"

"We expect to use the available aircraft to capacity" should the railway mail service be suspended, he said.

Rail Strike Would Tax Truck Lines

Perishable Goods To Get Preference

Mansfield trucking line managers said yesterday that in event the threatened rail strike materializes, they will give priority to food shipments.

The consensus was, however, that the truck lines would not be able to handle even a fraction of the normal railroad load of raw materials needed to keep the wheels of Mansfield's industries turning.

Since the truck lines are operating at capacity now, they would not be able to handle more than a small portion of the finished products that could be turned out with the stockpiled raw materials, spokesmen said.

With industry halted because of the lack of raw materials, most of the local trucks would be available to haul foodstuffs.

Curtis L. Ford, acting postmaster, reported that tentative plans are now being drawn up to handle the mail in event of a strike.

Ford recalled that during the railroad strike in 1946 the department placed an embargo on parcel post and limited first class mail to eight ounces.

"If the strike goes through as planned," Ford said, "local mail within Mansfield will be unaffected, but mail coming into or going out of the city will be sharply reduced."

Strikes to End

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP)—German labor union leaders decided Saturday to end food strikes in the British occupation zone next Wednesday Approximately 80,000 workers have been idle in Hanover and smaller cities in Lower Saxony since Monday.

Steelman Battles Deadlock

Calls Another Session Today

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The nationwide railroad strike "will go on" as scheduled Tuesday, union leaders said last night after a fruitless three-hour conference with management at the White House.

The three key unions which voted the strike turned down the railroads' renewed offer of a 15½ cent an hour wage increase and various changes in operating rules.

W. T. Faricy, president of the Association of American Railroads and a spokesman for the carriers, declared: "That's our final offer."

The situation was tightly deadlocked last night and John R. Steelman, President Truman's labor trouble shooter, admitted it.

"So far it has been impossible to bring the parties to an agreement. We are going to try again Sunday. I have asked both sides to think over the matter tonight and discuss it with their people," he said

The railroads' proposal for the 15½ cent raise and the changes in working rules was identical with the settlement recommended weeks ago by a presidential fact finding board.

Other railroad unions accepted such an increase but three important operating brotherhoods—the Engineers, Firemen and Enginemen, and Switchmen—held out for more.

LEADERS OBJECT

Referring to Saturday's renewal of that 15½ cent offer, Alvanley Johnston, head of the engineers, told reporters:

"That's no settlement.

"As far as we're concerned, the strike will go on."

The possibility that the government might seize and operate the roads remained. But there was no apparent move last night in this direction.

Steelman brought the disputants together about 1:45 p.m. (EST) and the meeting broke up just before 5 p.m. Steelman had left the management and union representatives alone in a conference room most of the time.

The joint session was the first that had been held since April 27, in Chicago.

The word that Steelman had even been able to get the two sides together raised some hope for peaceful settlement of the dispute. But that hope was let down by the won't budge statements by both parties

Faricy, of the operators, said that Steelman had not asked the railroads to go beyond the recommendations made by the fact-finding board last March 27.

MEET ALL POINTS

But he emphasized that the railroads renewed their offer to put into effect "everything" recommended by the fact-finding board.

"We've said we'll put it into effect lock, stock and barrel," he told reporters.

The union men and management representatives were reported to have discussed two big issues besides the pay increase—overtime and terminal pay.

The unions want overtime pay for night shifts, Sundays, and holidays. The emergency board recommended against this . . . . but the unions still want it.

They also are demanding pay for time that engineers and firemen have to spend in terminals before their trains depart. The board recommended pay for such delays in passenger service after one hour. The brotherhoods want it in freight service too.

U. N. Agrees On Palestine

LAKE SUCCESS —(AP)— Top United Nations delegates were reported last night generally agreed on creating an emergency regime for Palestine.

Sentiment for a provisional administration for the Holy Land was said authoritatively to have crystallized after long meetings among the delegates.

The special U. N. assembly on Palestine is working against time. The British plan to give up the Palestine mandate at midnight Friday. The assembly is trying to shape up at least a token organization to fill the vacuum created by the British action.

Martin's Dreaming of a Vacation

One-Man Identification Bureau on Call At All Times

Paul Martin the city police department s one-man identification bureau, is dreaming of a vacation—but there isn't much chance that he will get one this year

Year before last Martin lost his 10-day vacation Last year he lost 14 days He hasn t seen a motion picture in more than a year and a half and on that occasion, I got called out before I could discover what the movie was about' Martin recalls

As the only man in the city's identification department, Martin is on call 24 hours a day. All too frequently, a call likely will come at such hours as 3 a. m.

It s no fun getting out of a soft, warm bed and beating it down to headquarters, Martin says But of course, when I m needed I must answer the call"

State law requires that all prisoners arrested on a felony charge must be photographed and fingerprinted immediately upon arrest As felonies more often than not are committed at night, Martin seldom spends an entire evening or night at his home, 483 McPherson street

MANY OTHER TASKS

Fingerprinting and photographing or as it is known to police, mugging are big jobs in themselves But his one man identification bureau has many other tasks too Here s some of them

Photographing all crime and misadventure scenes including suicides and serious accidents, retaining all evidence found at the scene of a crime assisting in the maintenance of the jail receiving records maintaining a file of all wanted' circulars from the F B I and other law enforcement agencies

Now that the federal government's "loyalty program" is in full swing, the additional task of checking files for criminal records or indications of being involved in subversive activities of all civil service applicants who ever lived in Richland county has been assumed by Martin

And finally he must assist any organization in taking fingerprints required by the government

With a total of 14 years on the force Martin has been with the identification bureau since it was inaugurated in 1937 Meade K Bates, then chief of police was sold on the idea of the city force having its own ident' bureau.

CITY GAVE $1 000

Bates convinced city council he was right and $1 000 was appropriated for files fingerprinting equipment a camera and an enlarger E C Fuller who was identification officer at the Ohio State reformatory for a number of years was the new city department s first head

Fuller and Martin working on their own time and spending some of their own money built the wooden files which are now being replaced by safer more efficient, fire-proof steel files

"I saw the need for the bureau," Martin remembers, "and studied with Fuller on off duty hours—I was then a patrolman—and worked nights for no extra pay just to help and learn"

Martin paid his own expenses for a course with the Institute of Applied Science in Detroit with whom he studied fingerprinting and photography.

He still buys out of his own pocket books which are needed if he is to keep up with the constant advancements being made in identification techniques

ALONE SINCE 1945

Since 1945 Martin has run the bureau alone For a while after his return from the Army in '45, one of the secretaries in the Traffic Record bureau occasionally worked in the identification section doing typing and filing Now Martin doesn t have even this assistance

Police Chief Schwab wants to get another man Martin says but under civil service regulations such a man must come out of the department which means that another man must be added to the force a move city council must approve

There doesn t seem to be any move afoot to add a new man to the force

Martin is on duty six days of the week including Sunday morning. Sunday afternoon he goes home, when he finds it possible

But I can t plan to do anything says Martin because every time I do something happens

He isn t complaining he says but thinks it would be nice to have a vacation this year'

County Board Votes to Build Wooden Bridge In Butler

Butler village s Union street bridge will be rebuilt with wood, county commissioners agreed yesterday following the third meeting on the reconstruction of the right-of-way which was washed out during a recent storm

John W Selby chairman of the commissioners, said county forces would be used to construct the bridge and the village would participate in the cost estimated by County Engineer Walter E Rusk at $5 500

Selby said the former concrete structure will be replaced with a wooden bridge due to the excessive cost of a concrete job. "We do not have the money to build a concrete bridge at this time," Selby said

Butler s participation in the program is not expected to exceed $500 as indicated by village councilmen who met with the commissioners yesterday Butler s entire street fund for the yea is $2,000

Meanwhile, Rusk said tests would have to be made around the bridge to determine the amount of quicksand activity in the area which is believed to have contributed to the collapse of the structure Start of construction has been set for July

Italians Drink Peroxide Milk

NEW YORK —(AP)— A simple method of sterilizing milk by stirring a small amount of hydrogen peroxide the familiar antiseptic, is being used in Italy

The milk is said to taste better than pasteurized milk, an American Chemical Society magazine reports, and sterilization is complete for three days The idea has been studied before, but an Italian chemical company in Milan, Italy, apparently solved the problems of producing hydrogen peroxide that is high enough in purity stability and concentration to be used in milk

American investigators are studying the treatment Containers for the peroxide treated-milk have to be made of tinned iron aluminum glass or clay products since the peroxide is reactive to iron copper, lead and alkalies

Authorities Laud Unique Decision on Restrictions

The unanimous decision of the United States Supreme Court in the restrictive covenant cases is already being hailed by competent authorities as the most important decision of its type since the Dred Scott decision There are some lawyers who go even further and declare that it comes closer to reversing the decision of the court when it declared in 1857 that Negroes have no rights which a white man is bound to respect" than any of the civil rights decisions of recent years

There are a number of unique circumstances in connection with the covenant cases There was no plea of violation of civil rights made by the lawyers who opposed such covenants Their argument was based wholly on questions of constitutional law which the court has now solved in a manner which will do much to clear away the subterfuges and legal chicaneries which have been used to perpetuate second class citizenship for minorities in the United States

WHITE

The decision of the court was distinctly not a political one It was read with great moral conviction by Chief Justice Vinson who comes from Kentucky, and was concurred in by both Republican and Democratic southern and northern members of the court In the tense atmosphere which surrounded the reading of the decision one could almost feel that the court realized that the democratic process was on trial and that it was incumbent upon the court to demonstrate not only to those who have been herded in ghettos because of race or religion but to the entire world that the United States constitution must be implemented to the fullest extent

It took 31 years at a cost in excess of $100,000 to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to win the fight against racial ghettos which were achieved by city ordinances, state laws and restrictive covenants. During the latter years of the fight other groups awoke to the menace of the use of the legislative, judicial and executive branches of government to enforce these private agreements among property owners. The result was a phenomenon never before seen in the court.

Fifteen organizations — labor church civic and racial filed briefs amicus curiae in opposition to covenants The United States government entered the fight and one of the most effective arguments made before the court was that of Philip Perlman solicitor general of the United States The result was a clever-cut affirmation of decent American opinion in opposition to the selfish real estate interests and individual property owners who tried to create a pattern of home ownership and occupancy identical with the ghettos of Poland

The decision of the court will give new hope in the democratic process to millions of Americans and will materially affect the acute housing and health problems of minorities who by reason of skin color or religious belief or place of birth have been penned into restricted areas

And America itself can hold up its head with greater pride before the world because of this decision. The supreme court by its unequivocal action has given the lie to anti-American propagandists who allege that democracy is decadent.

It is to be hoped that the attempts to find some new method of achieving the same end results which were sought through restrictive covenants will be swiftly abandoned And there need be no apprehension that democracy is going to be overthrown because Americans now irrespective of race, creed or national origin are able to purchase rent and occupy homes wherever they are able to afford them

China Brings High Prices

PORTSMOUTH R I — (AP) — Women eager to own something once used by a Vanderbilt" bid up to $50 apiece for odd pieces of china and glassware at an auction of family accumulations at former Governor William E Vanderbilt's estate

An odd lot of glass stoppers for which the auctioneer asked Who'll give me a dollar?" went for $5

When the Vanderbilt stable equipment came up men paid only three or five dollars for horse-drawn cultivators and mowing machines but when the auctioneer offered a rusty-wheeled refreshment wagon "used to peddle hot dogs at Republican rallies" it brought $32

During the U S depression of the 30s families on relief experienced nearly three times as much illness which proved disabling for a year or more than was found among well-to-do families

Marylanders Finally May Get Bay Span

40-Year Dream Nearing Reality

SANDY POINT, Md — (AP) — Forty troubled years of dreaming and scheming on how to link their widely separated eastern and western shores are paying off for Marylanders at last.

The Chesapeake bay bridge is almost a reality.

Congress has given the nod Test borings are near completion Contracts for the $30,000,000 state-financed bridge are scheduled for bidding sometime this summer or fall.

Whatever the final design adopted, the five-mile highway crossing will be among the world's great bridges. A 1,400-foot center span is planned to keep the bay entrance to Baltimore harbor as clear as possible.

To allow easy passage of ocean going vessels, the bridge will soar 200 feet or so above water level, according to preliminary plans announced by state officials

Yet some citizens may not quite believe it until they can see the toll span rise across the narrows of Chesapeake bay, from Sandy Point, near Annapolis, to Kent Island on the eastern shore.

They recollect the frequent disappointments in the project's history. This began in 1907 with a proposal by the Baltimore Merchants and Travelers association for a trolley car link between the Mainland and the peninsula.

HOPES RISE AND FALL

Since that year, the crossing plan has been alternately adopted and scuttled by the state legislatures. Private financiers have espoused the project, then let go

Politicians have treated the scheme as a fantastic vision or practical necessity, a potential white elephant or a white hope. The state repeatedly went begging to the federal government for funds—which it never got. But considerations of commerce and geography kept the project alive

Its supporters down through the years have pointed out that Maryland, alone among the 48 states, has 30 per cent of her land area, 20 per cent of her motor vehicles, and 20 per cent of her population (outside Baltimore) sliced off from her mainland Only a small strip of land at the northwestern end of the eastern shore peninsula is undivided by the bay.

The peninsula is shared by Maryland, Delaware and a bit of Virginia

Farmers of Maryland's eastern shore found quick produce markets in Wilmington and Philadelphia rather than in trans-bay Baltimore Western shore business men became increasingly unhappy Motorists were plagued by hour-long delays at the ferry points

In 1926 a private company formed to build the span. Bids were asked in 1929 Then came the big bust. The company quit So the state decided to take over and appointed a study commission

MENCKEN OPPOSED

Meantime opponents were not silent One of them was the formidable H L. Mencken, in those days a special writer for the Baltimore Sunpapers, who assailed the state's proposed method of financing the project (then estimated at $10,000,000)

In 1933, the state set up a Chesapeake bay bridge authority which asked the government for a $4,500,000 PWA grant and a $3,-50,000 loan It got neither

And so it was—until 1945, when William Preston Lake jr., running for governor of Maryland, gave the campaign pledge that the bridge would be built. What's more, the state would do its own financing.

Lane was elected Again Maryland's dream bridge is rising—but Marylanders, used to disappointments, are keeping their fingers crossed.

A MODERN interpretation of colonial tradition, this plan can be used on either a wide or narrow lot. Bertram A. Weber, 221 North LaSalle street, Chicago, is the architect. He finds this style popular because it "imparts an air of grace and dignity to any site." Plan W-500, this house includes six good sized rooms in 1,300 square feet, exclusive of porch and garage. A part basement accommodates heating plant and laundry.

Methodists Vote Against Segregation In Churches

BOSTON—(AP)—The Methodist general conference resolved Saturday against segregation of Negroes in its southern churches despite a Georgia delegate's warning that the action 'would cause trouble in the south"

Rev. Dr. William R. Cannon, professor at the Candle School of Theology at Emory University, opposed the conference's acceptance of a resolution. He said the move would cause trouble.

His stand was defeated, however after Rev. Fremont Tittle of Evanston, Ill., said the Methodist attitude was a matter of "teaching the Christian gospel"

'The unwillingness of laymen and the church to stick their necks out in the name of Christ is defeating the purpose of the church," Rev Dr. Tittle said to loud applause.

He added that the conference resolution 'did not call for immediate reorganization of jurisdiction"

Prize List Announced In N-J Meet

Distribution of prize money in the first annual News-Journal head pin bowling tournament was announced last night by Dale Cleckner, manager of the Richland Recreation alleys.

The prize pot reached $119.25 as 477 Richland county bowlers competed in the unique tournament on the Richland lanes. It cost the bowlers one dollar to roll three games with 25 cents going into the prize kitty.

Champions in each of the five classes will get $6 apiece with the over-all winners in the men's and women's divisions getting the News-Journal trophies. Dick Metcalf, a Class B bowler, won the men's title with 333 pins while Elnora Kanz took the women's crown with a 298.

WINS CLASS A

Bob Lynch, Mansfield's top average pinster, took Class A laurels with 325 pins while Ray Snavely had a 316 in Class C. Louise Ludwig was the women's Class B winner with a 282 pin-fall.

Henry Biles and Lil LeMunyon also took home nice chunks of the prize melon by compiling the highest single game out of the money. Biles had a near-perfect 118 and Mrs. LeMunyon garnered a 101. Each gets five dollars.

The money will be available at the Recreation alleys when they open this week. The lanes have been shut down for renovation.

Finds His Car, Loses His Love

OKLAHOMA CITY — (AP) — There was little joy for the owner in the recovery of an automobile he reported stolen.

Detectives found the auto parked in front of a bus station. Inside, pinned to the seat, was a note, saying:

"I have gone to California. We never would have made it anyway—Ann."

Ann, the officers theorized, borrowed the boy friend's auto to drive to the bus station — and went on to California.

MANSFIELD GRAIN

The following prices are being paid to farmers by Hoffman-Hanley Mills Inc and Lantz Milling Co.

Wheat No 2 red $2.30
Corn No 2 yellow $2.10
Oats No 2 32 pounds $1.05

DIRECTOR—Dr. Edward U. Condon directs the bureau of standards which handles research on U. S. military secrets.

Wheat, Corn Prices Drop

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat and corn suffered losses extending to several cents on the board of trade Saturday. Selling came mainly from traders unwilling to carry grain over the week end in view of a possibility that the scheduled railroad strike will be avoided.

A forecast for scattered showers in the southwest also was a factor in selling of wheat. Cash houses continued to liquidate corn, particularly the May contract.

Stocks Lean To Recovery

NEW YORK— (AP) - Stocks generally leaned to the recovery side during the past week although market leaders turned a bit irregular in Saturday's sessions.

Throughout the week the threatened railway strike clouded sentiment at intervals. Hopes for a settlement brought intermittent rallies but, with results still lacking, caution revived in the day's speculative and investment operations.

Dealings totalled 640,000 shares. Highs for 1948 were touched by St Louis Southwestern railroad, which ended up 7 points at 134, on only 100 shares. Sinclair Oil 1⅛ at 24½. Industrial Rayon ¾ at 52½ and Celanese ⅞ at 30⅜.

Eastern Air Lines, Pan American Airways and American Airlines were up a trifle in reflection of the move for boosted air mail pay.

Improvement was retained by Electric Power and Light, Consolidated Edison, North American, Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Studebaker, Northern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, Standard Oil (NJ), Lockheed, Paramount Pictures, Pepsi-cola and American Smelting.

Down a point or so for a day were Nickel Plate common and preferred at 64½ and 134 respectively. Santa Fe 105½ and Pacific Western Oil 37. Steels, motors and rubbers were narrow.

Lid Ready To Blow In China

Li's Election Stuns Country

By FRED HAMPSON

SHANGHAI — (AP) — Many believe the lid finally is about to blow off in China as the currency crashes and civil war defeats multiply.

In this land, where temporizing with disaster seems a national habit, one hesitates to agree with this prediction. Yet it is hard to see how the crackup can be postponed much longer even with U. S. aid.

The Chinese currency, which was 2,500 to $1 U. S. two years ago, has been falling by fits and starts. It passed the historic 1,000,000 to $1 point last week.

Next day former Mayor Roger D. Lapham of San Francisco was appointed administrator of a $338,000,000 non-military U. S. loan to China.

Not even this spectacle of Uncle Sam riding to the resuce could level off or slow the plunge as might have been expected.

The skid is continuing unchecked, with 1,150,000 to $1 the latest quotation.

ALL AT ONCE

Everything seems to be happening at once to push down the currency: the political split at Nanking, military reverses in the north, a vast shift of trade from legal to smuggling channels in the south, the flight of men from the farms and villages to escape conscription.

The defeat of the Kuomintang (government party) leaders in the national assembly at Nanking was probably the biggest factor.

Gen. Li Tsung-Jen's election as vice president of China despite the opposition of President Chiang Kai-Shek and the old guard of the Kuomintang is the biggest split yet in the government. It came as a stunning surprise.

On the surface it would seem that Li's election should have bolstered the currency. Overnight he became a national hero.

HOPES SHIFT

The nation seems suddenly to have shifted its hopes to this relatively little-known general. This is partly because he advocated reforms, but mainly because in China's first free election he licked the Kuomintang Satraps who have ruled China for 20 years.

Observers feel that if Li plays his cards right he'll grow stronger still. If reforms don't come, the nation right now is in more of a mood to blame Chiang for obstructing than Li for failing.

This revolt by the brand new constitutional government against the party that was supposed to have hand-picked it has stirred great hopes among those in China who take the long view.

But economical and financial marketeers don't look at it that way. They see Li's election only as a serious rift in the government at a time when the communists are hammering at the gates. So the money keeps falling.

DON'T WRITE OFF CHIANG

It would be foolish to write off Chiang yet. He has not led the loose-knit Kuomintang through two decades without learning how to plug the cracks. But not since he took the helm has a leader of Li's stature risen to challenge Chiang's position with the Chinese people.

Always before in the time of emergency the question was: if not Chiang who? and there was no answer. Today the answer is Gen. Li Tsung-Jen.

There is much speculation about Li. You hear that he has quietly got control of the army and may soon stage a coup. Li denies any such intentions, of course, and vows loyalty to Chiang.

If the war continues to be lost, however, and the army begins to abandon hope in Chiang, Li easily could become the man of the hour.

Li long has been a foe of the reds, but he is a realist. Many think if he views the situation hopeless he might try to make a deal with the communists in an effort to salvage some sort of coalition. Or he might be the man to reorganize for a final fight.

None thinks Chiang could or would try to make a deal with the reds in the face of complete defeat. And there are those who say his military leadership has been so bad lately he couldn't head a last-ditch fight.

GUESS AT HALF

To assay the war situation is to scrutinize half the picture and guess at the other half. The reds certainly have been winning for many months, but they seem never to consolidate their gains.

Information about the communists is scanty and often contradictory. Some say they are almost as bad off as the nationalists economically, and little better off militarily.

You hear that in some sectors the vaunted communists land reforms have backfired because they kicked out good farmers and put in bad ones, that their recruiting drive has failed, that their manpower losses have been staggering. Anyway, their long-advertised spring offensive in Manchuria seems slow in starting.

Thus troubles multiply in a nation which always seems on the brink of chaos. American relief has become a race with time.

"AMERICAN MOTHER OF THE YEAR," Mrs. Helen Gartside Hines (middle) of Springfield, O., arrives in New York after being chosen for the "Mother" honor by Golden Rule Foundation. A delegation of children and her Mount Holyoke classmates meets the 60-year-old mother of 10 children.

American Mother Urges 'Spiritual Guidance' of Child

NEW YORK —(AP)— The American Mother of 1948 said Saturday mothers should give their children "strength through spiritual guidance."

Mrs. Herbert G. Hines, the 60-year-old Springfield, Ill., mother of ten children, who was given the title of American mother by the Golden Rule foundation, said that "it is through our children that the future is becoming a reality."

Mrs. Hines spoke on a special Mother's Day program through arrangement with the Foundation's American Mothers' committee.

Mrs. Hines said:

"We have cut the pattern of destiny, but we must give it strength and courage to go on when we are no longer its keepers. We must seek the way of truth for only truth can live and build upon itself.

"Give your child strength through spiritual guidance, for it is in the power of God that he will often seek the solution of his problems.

"If we, as mothers, can realize that, there is security in the future, man made and God created."

There is no task, she added, "more rewarding than to raise a family which one may look upon with pride. I have that pride. It is that which makes being the American mother a greater honor. You and I, the mothers of today, know that the world of tomorrow is growing within our homes."

Mrs. Hines told newsmen that "large families in general are no asset to the country. Often they are a liability.

"Where you have parents that are healthy and can have a fine family life and can educate the children, they're the ones that should have large families."

Prosperous Farms Seen

OSU Economists Cite Tax Relief

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The 1948 harvest will yield farmers a healthy crop of prosperity, Ohio State university economists figured Saturday.

The rural economists said most signs point to a prosperous year for the state's tillers of the soil.

One of those signs is the halt in the recent drop of farm prices. Others are increased industrial production, more stable prices, heavy spending from good incomes, tax relief, goods exported and higher government spending to meet the increased defense budget.

Th economists predicted the military training program would reduce the labor market and boom industrial construction.

These rosy omens, however, are accompanied by a few dark clouds, the economists said.

These are consumer resistance to high prices and caution of business men as supplies catch up with demand and lessened domestic demand for farm goods.

But generally the outlook bodes good for the farmer this year, the university economists said.

This, they explained, is especially true while "fat cattle" symbols of prosperity outnumber "lean cattle" which is a sign of hard times.

Spooners Get Helping Hand

LONDON —(AP)— The London county council decided to give spring a helping hand today. It ordered two-place benches installed in the parks so that spooners can get away from kibitzers.

YOUTH HELD IN SLAYINGS—Ervin Arthur Ingle (above), 14, sits in County jail in Bryan, O. clasping a prayer book. Sheriff Norman A. Barnes said that the boy admitted the slayings of John Gabriel and his wife, Pearl, both 57, because he wanted their car to attend a school dance. The boy was held without charge. Double funeral services will be held today for the slain couple. (AP Wirephoto)

Socialists Will Back Thomas For President Sixth Time

READING, PA.,—(AP)—Norman Thomas reluctantly agreed Saturday to accept should the Socialist party tender him a sixth nomination for the presidency.

The veteran Socialist leader has campaigned as his party's nominee for the nation's highest office in five quadrennial elections beginning in 1928. The decision assured his nomination today at the 26th annual convention.

Thomas said he was reversing a previous decision not to run because "it is imperative that the party should nominate one who is already well known by the public."

"Never was a democratic socialist program more necessary for the freedom, peace and prosperity of America and mankind," Thomas said.

"But instead of the new party movement for which we Socialists had hoped and worked we are confronted with the Wallace-Communist alliance.

"On some — by no means all— Pacific issues I, like most socialists, am in agreement with the views expressed by Mr. Wallace.

"We emphatically disagree with him in believing that peace can be had by appeasement of aggressive communist totalitarianism."

Thomas' decision came as the convention, working to complete the party platform, rejected a proposed resolution calling for "organized civil disobedience" to all war and warlike preparations.

Adopted instead was a committee report pledging the party to support of the Marshall plan in the event Soviet Russia rejects proposals to "make the United Nations a democratic world organization"

Pastor to Speak

Members of the Hedges P-TA will hear Rev. Samuel U. J. Peard as guest speaker when they meet for their May session next Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. Grade school children will sing. Charles Spetka is program chairman and R. C. Chew is president of the group.

Red Cross Regional Official To Speaks at Annual Meeting

When members of the Richland county Red Cross meet for their annual session Tuesday at 8 p. m. they will hear Frederic S. Laise, assistant manager of the Eastern area, tell of some of the National Red Cross problems and program.

Laise began working with the Red Cross in September 1942, when he assumed the post of assistant regional director for Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia. In January, 1944, Pennsylvania was added to the state under his jurisdiction and in May of that year he became, under reorganization plans, regional director of Pennsylvania.

He entered service in 1943 and served as flag lieutenant and aide to Admiral Henry S. Kendall, commander of the 24th carrier division.

Mrs. Bess Augsburger, executive secretary of the Red Cross here, will outline plans for the coming fiscal year, which starts July 1. The meeting, to be presided over by Frank Elias, chapter chairman, will be held in the chapter house, 309 Park avenue west.

AUTO FIRE EXTINGUISHED

Police Investigate Connecticut Boy

A thirteen year old Hartford, Conn., youth was being held for investigation following his arrest at the Greyhound bus station, city police said yesterday.

Police said the youth had been observed acting in a suspicious manner and spending money freely. When taken into custody, officers found a pocketbook belonging to a Mansfielder.

Call of South Seas Draws Hundreds of Amateur Seafarers

By KEN LIKES

HONOLULU—(AP)—White sails again sweep the windy roads of the Pacific as seagoing adventurers match tiny boats and seamanship against vast stretches of ocean.

In fragile homemade craft or in luxurious yachts, more sea travelers pass through Honolulu than before the war. They make Ala Moana basin off Waikiki beach a bustling ocean crossroads.

Hundreds of sailors cherish a like goal—escape from a troubled world. Some meet schedules. They plan to span the globe and return home at a certain time. Others drift aimlessly, answering the call of the South Seas, still a dreamy refuge from twentieth century strife.

Magnetic lures to these seafarers are the mysterious, musical names of far-away places like Pago Pago, Suva, Papeete and Funafuti. Still farther off the traveled shipping lanes, yachters prowl the ocean backwashes to touch at remote islands like Pitcairn.

The Yankee II from Gloucester, Mass., dropped anchor not long ago at Pitcairn, lonely refuge of the HMS Bounty mutineers Blond islanders, descended from the crew that mutinied on the bounty in 1789, feasted in joy over the visit. While the Yankee II tarried on its round-world voyage, the ship's doctor performed four major operations on members of the little colony.

At sea for a thrill are the skippers who hoist startling spreads of canvas on miniature sailboats.

YAWL CIRCLES GLOBE

Almost any time the Pacific sailing log reads as a chronicle of adventure:

There is Harry Pidgeon, who sailed his 34-foot Yawl Islander here from his home port near Los Angeles last August. Pidgeon, 78 and dean of round-world small boat skippers, has circled the globe twice in his little craft He returned to Honolulu on his third attempt at a world cruise.

The old seaman and his two-woman crew turned the prow of their Yawl westward in November. Nothing was heard of them for three months. Then word filtered back that a gale had ripped the Islander apart off Espiritu Santo in the New Hebrides. The battered but uninjured little crew steamed back to California on a Norwegian freighter.

Another oldtimer bucking the Pacific, 68-year-old Eugene S. Sheffield of Napa, Calif., sailed a 40-foot, homemade Yawl single handed from San Francisco. He fought rough seas for 52 days on a 5,000 mile course. A prune rancher with a yen for salt air, he had worked eight years to build his boat, the Peggy, in his backyard.

Marvin J. Bigelow of San Francisco recently turned seaman after more than 20 years behind an accountant's desk

"Nothing is duller than wholesale hardware," he said and cast off from the west coast in a midget size yawl, the 26-foot Springbok With one crewman, Thomas Harrison, a merchant seaman from Capetown, South Africa, Bigelow made the voyage from Los Angeles to Honolulu in 27 days. Last heard from here, he and Harrison were riding the high seas for South Africa.

TO LEASE ISLAND

The 108-foot schooner Seaward stopped over in March on her way from San Pedro, Calif., to the Society islands. Capt. Charles Williams and his 22 passengers and crewmen said they hoped to lease a tropical isle somewhere around Tahiti. They longed to "get away from it all for a couple of years or maybe longer."

The mid-Pacific sailing log is almost endless. The Carolina, a 72-footer, 45 days out of Panama. The missionary schooner Morning Star VI headed for Micronesia. The Barca De Oro from Mexico. The Karl Crist from Peru. Sailing vessels from Russia, Sweden, China. Boats with romantic names like the Loafer, Dolphin II, Hir, Lang Syne, Island Girl, South Wind, Seven Seas, Tropic Bird.

Strangest of all recent sea stories—and perhaps a saga for all times—is the tale of Ronald Johnson, a Biritish seaman.

When he set out for Tahiti last October, he didn't start out like most Yachtsmen. He rode a powerless, surplus subchaser at the end of a tow line.

The cable between his craft and the towing vessel, another subchaser, parted in a storm 200 miles from Honolul. Johnson, refused to abandon ship. He signaled the other crew to depart, leaving him along in a powerless craft, virtually prey to winds, tides and chance.

The daring sailor spread makeshift sails for a long struggle against wind and waves. He patched and pumped his leaky craft and lived on canned rations and dolphin for four and a half months. A freighter finally sighted the weary voyager and towed his weatherbeaten ship the last few miles into a port of haven in the Fijis, some 1,900 miles west of his original destination.

Child Models Sell Goods

Trade Booms For Photogenic Youngsters

NEW YORK—(AP)—The child model business—sparked by doting mamas whose children are photogenic is booming today.

An advertisement featuring a child at play, a gurgling baby or a mother-daughter combination has strong consumer pulling power. The teen-age girl model of the type that grandma called "wholesome" is in big demand to sell products in magazines and newspapers.

And thousands of mothers are willing to pay the expense of $50 or more to list their child with a recognized agency and take the gamble for success.

One man riding the crest of this newly expanding business is Walter Thornton, an ex-G. I. of World War I who created the "Pin Up Girl" of World War II.

One day in 1940 Thornton dug about 5,000 photographs of girls out of the files of his famous model agency and shipped them off to Fort Dix, N. J. The idea, as you know, was a winner.

Thornton has been in the model agency business since 1931, but only in the last five or six years has he stressed child models. Today it accounts for 45 per cent of his business and is still expanding

He isn't the only one, of course, but he operates with more child models and over a wider field on a mass production basis than any other agency.

HOW TO ENTER FIELD

How does a child become a model? Well, take your own case. You have a beautiful child. Maybe you don't think so yourself, but people stop you on the street and comment: "My! What a Beautiful Child!"

So you take the child to a model agency. There your child will be accepted as a model, or you will get the most gentle bum's rush ever devised by man. Thornton turns down 50 to 75 per cent of the 100 to 150 persons who apply weekly.

However, your child doesn't have to be beautiful to make the grade. A youngster with unruly hair, a mass of freckles and one front tooth missing is a perfect picture of a real boy.

If your child is accepted by an agency, your work is only beginning. A fee of $50. is charged by Thornton to cover advertising expense. You pay for the photographs, taken by any studio, but he won't accept a picture costing more than $10. This is the only fee, and registration continues as long as the model is available for work.

Agencies send a selected group of photographs of what they consider their best model possibilities, around to clients who want to use them in their advertisements. Either that particular photograph is used, or the child itself is called in to pose.

Thornton has the photo purchaser send the fee directly to the model. He gets nothing For posing, however, he collected a standard 10 per cent commission on earnings of $7.50 an hour to as high as $10 to $15 an hour. Children under one year are paid $10 an hour.

MODEL PAID $10,000

How much does that come to? Well, one 13-year old model, who has been working steadily since she was age two, had gross earnings of $10,000 last year But, and it is a big but, there is a mighty long list of models who don't make a dime

Thornton proudly lists among his model-discoveries such stars as Susan Hayward, Lauren Bacall, Lizabeth Scott, Dorothy McGuire, and a newcomer, Arline Dahl.

When mothers think of models they think of those names or probably of Movie Star Peggy Ann Garner or Cover Girl Jackie Miles, age 13. They never realize the great odds against top-flight success.

Thornton gets a lot of inquiries from out of town and particularly from Cleveland, for some unexplained reason From abroad most of the letters come from Stockholm or Helsinki.

'Magic Eye' Aids Shipping

Radar Going to Work on Ohio River

By FRED J. ZUSY

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Radar, the eye that sees through the dark, is going to work to help river shipping.

Army engineers are using radar to map 981 miles of the Ohio river, one of the nation's busiest inland waterways.

Radar navigation charts will soon be available to river pilots and captains to speed up their trips and make them safer.

If the charts prove as successful as the engineers expect, similar mapping projects may be carried out on other waterways such as the Mississippi, Illinois and Missouri rivers and the intracoastal route, and on the Great Lakes.

They should prove especially valuable for navigating through heavy fog, rain or overcast, when ordinary navigation beacons and markers are not easily visible.

The skipper of a river boat equipped with radar and a set of the new charts theoretically would be able to steer his craft and two tows along the river without stepping outside the pilot house.

By checking the radar picture of his surroundings with the chart, he could fix his position almost exactly, tell how far he is from the river banks and what obstructions are in the way.

RADAR EXPLAINED

Radar is a coined word. It stands for radio detecting and ranging. A revolving radar antenna sends out ultra-high frequency radio waves which travel at 186,000 miles a second—the speed of light.

Like light, the waves can be focused in a beam and swept around the surrounding area from the transmitter. The beam reflects back from objects it strikes.

The time it takes the beam to be reflected back is computed by part of the radar equipment. The range to the object—which shows up as a spot on the radar scope—can be estimated within a matter of yards by an experienced operator.

The radar charts the engineers are preparing will show the river as it will look to the pilot on his radar scope.

The radar scope will show not only such fixed objects as river banks, bridges, locks and turns in the stream. It also will portray other ships and tows on the river so they can be avoided.

Buildings, elevations on ground and similar objects in the vicinity, also will show up on the screen. They will help identify the location.

AID TO PILOT

Any pilot worthy of the name, however, will always know his general whereabouts. The radar picture and chart will help him feel his way from point to point if the weather makes it impossible to follow the navigation lights.

Lt. Col. Richard L. Jewett, deputy chief of civil works for the Army engineers, says that more than one-third of the Ohio already has been photographed for the new charts. Col. Branch B. Talley, district engineer at Louisville, started the job last year.

An Army craft, the Surveyor, has been used as a floating plant. Individual photographs of pictures on the radar screen are taken as the Surveyor moves along the river. These are blown up and laid out as a connecting mosaic. The scale is one inch to 2,000 feet, the same as regular navigational charts.

So far the 344 miles between Dam 31 at Portsmouth, Ohio, and Dam 45 at Addyston, Ky., have been photographed. The remaining 359 miles between Portsmouth and Pittsburgh and the 278 miles from Addyston to the mouth at Cairo, Ill., are expected to be finished by Sept. 1.

Only five sample charts have been completed to date, although others for the first 344-mile stretch now are being prepared. Charts for the Portsmouth-Addyston area are expected to go on sale about July 1; with the rest available after the first of the year.

RIVER TRAFFIC HEAVY

One reason the Ohio was chosen to start the work was that Col. Talley in Louisville is familiar with air photographic mapping. In that, too, individual shots are lines up to form one over-all picture.

Another reason was the amount of freight carried by barge traffic on the Ohio This has run well over 30,000,000 tons a year since 1941.

Some vessels now plying the river already are equipped with radar. Once the new charts are available, many others are expected to install it.

Army radar experts several years ago succeeded in getting a radar echo from the moon. During the war all services used radar to detect enemy planes and ships. Planes were picked up 100 miles or more away.

One former Navy skipper tells of using radar to steer his ship through the close-lying concrete piers of the Huey Long bridge across the Mississippi during a heavy fog.

Army engineers now are studying use of reflector beacons which would show up strongly on radar scopes to more plainly mark bridge piers, lock walls and so on.

Auto Strike Conciliators Call Meeting

Hope to Avert Chrysler Walkout

DETROIT—(AP)—Federal conciliators, striving to avert a strike of 75,000 Chrysler corporation auto workers set for Wednesday, announced late Saturday that principals in the case have agreed to meet Monday (11:00 a.m.) to review the situation.

Federal Conciliator Leo Kotin said he talked to company officials and officers of the CIO United Auto Workers Saturday and found them agreeable to the Monday meeting.

The union broke off negotiations with Chrysler Thursday, asserting the two sides were "hopelessly deadlocked."

Yesterday they traded statements in efforts to support their positions.

The union demanded a 30 cent an hour wage boost atop the current average of $1.50 an hour for production workers. They scaled this down to 18½ cents at one point but later boosted it back to 30 cents.

The company once made an offer of a six cent wage boost. When the union turned it down, it was withdrawn.

In a letter to all employes, Herman L. Weckler, vice president and general manager of Chrysler, said in part:

"We are ready and willing to continue our discussions with the union. The company has tried to make clear to our employes through our conferences with the union that wage increases will inevitably mean another rise in prices and consequently a rise in the cost of living.

"We do not see how either a strike or another round of wage increases is going to solve the problem that confronts all of us."

FLAYS STATEMENT

Nrman Matthews, heading the UAW-CIO negotiations, called Weckler's statements "empty words and propaganda."

He said Chrysler workers "make an average of $13 a week less than the United States government says they need for bare subsistence."

Matthews charged that Chrysler "juggled" figures in its 1948 first quarter earnings report with intent to "hide" $3,400,00 in profits.

Chrysler reported "excess depreciation charges and inventory reserves" to cover this figure, Matthews said.

The corporation, in its quarterly report issued Thursday, said its net profit for the period was nearly $7,000,000 less than its net for the same period a year ago.

Chrysler placed the respective net profits at $14,921,644 and $21,502,407. The corporation blamed rising costs and material shortages among the causes.

At the same time the UAW-CIO's General Motors department said an analysis of GM's reported quarterly net of $96,481,412 showed that the company could cut prices, raise wages and still show a six per cent profit.

GM, the union said, could cut car prices by $130 and raise wages 50 cents an hour. The UAW asks a 25 cents hourly increase from GM. GM's average pay is $1.50, like that at Chrysler.

Highway Gets A Paint Job

The intersection of Route 42 south and Route 30 east got an impromptu paint job yesterday when a 30-gallon drum of white paint on its way to the city dump rolled off a Westinghouse truck and spilled all over the street.

Driver of the truck, Ervan Crider, Mansfield R.D. 4, was given a summons by city police to appear in municipal court tomorrow at 9:30 a.m. He was charged with having his truck load insecurely fastened.

Crider told police that he had loaded the truck with drums of "scrap" paint at the salvage department at Westinghouse and while he was making a left turn off 42 south into 30 east, one of the drums rolled off the truck.

Loiterer, 56, Fears Father Of 'Girl,' 52

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia. — (AP) — When police picked up a man who was loitering suspiciously at a street corner last night he explained he was watching the home of his girl friend.

"I was afraid to go to the door," he told Police Captain Howard Walsh. "Her father doesn't like me."

"Perhaps he feels you are too old for his daughter," Walsh said, noting that the man gave his age as 56.

"I don't think so," the despondent lover replied. "She's 52."

Committees Push Draft Bill Action

Senate Group To Vote Monday

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Senate armed services committee pushed its version of a military manpower bill Saturday, while a House group said Russia may be ready to risk a showdown now.

Chairman Gurney (R-SD) said the Senate committee will vote Monday on a bill combining stopgap selective service and a universal military training substitute. It will be ready for the Senate Tuesday, he said.

The Russian-showdown statement was in the formal report of a majority of the House armed services committee on the two-year draft bill it has approved.

In advancing the belief of a possible showdown, the House group said this country should offset any such Russian decision by drafting manpower for the army and navy.

But a committee minority of five retorted that "this is a program for war."

"We do not believe that a sound and adequate defense system requires the police state methods of compulsion," the group said in a report.

In advocating passage of a bill to draft men from 19 through 25 for two years' service, the committee majority said:

"A 70-group air force is not a substitute for selective service."

EXPANSION APPROVED

Both House and Senate have already approved expansion of the air force from 55 to 70 groups as part of the nation's defense program.

The House committee, by a 28 to 5 vote, already has approved the draft bill but no specific time for action on it by the House has been fixed yet.

The Senate committee bill calls for two years of service by drafted men from 19 through 25 years in the regular army, navy, marines or air force.

It plans one year of training for 161,000 18-year-olds with the regular services as a substitute for the original administration plan for a separate universal military training system.

A crowded Senate legislative program for this week indicates that the Draft-UMT measure probably can not be debated until the week of May 17.

He is honorary president of the club.

EVENTFUL TRIP—

The trip to Oberlin Friday by members of the Senior high school band, who played for the mock GOP convention, got off to a bad start but ended in splendid fashion. About three miles out of Mansfield, the school board truck carrying the instruments broke down and failed to arrive in time for the afternoon parade. However, J. Merton Holcombe, band director, heard of the trouble, telephoned Glenn Rohleder, school principal, who with the aid of a private truck and his own car and the help of a couple of high school teachers, had the instruments there in time for the evening. Because they were unable to join the afternoon marching, the MHS band was given the privilege of participating in a special parade in the evening when they marched to the Field House and entertained the audience prior to the convention opening. "We had a grand time, in spite of the initial trouble, "Holcombe reported yesterday.

MIXUP OF KEYS

Mystery of the missing keys isn't a mystery after all. Charles Glasgow, local postal employe, reported last night. It seems that one unidentified woman turned in some keys to Glasgow yesterday. Another unidentified woman inquired about the keys, explaining she lost them. But the inquiry failed to reach Glasgow's ears. So the keys are still at the postoffice. The owner, to get them back, will have to make herself known.

Defense Units Consolidated

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The transport service of the Navy and Air force will be consolidated into the Military Air Transport service June 1, the first major instance of unification since passage of the national defense act.

This new command, already dubbed the MATS, will operate military transport over routes totalling 65,000 miles and extending up into Alaska, down to Rio De Janerio, across the Atlantic and Pacific and around the world.

The MATS will have the responsibility for providing domestic and foreign scheduled air transportation for all departments of the national military establishment and other government agencies as authorized.

Pledge of Allegiance to Flag

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Mothers Shape Our Destiny

ONLY A MOTHER can understand what depths of feeling transform a woman from an ordinary person into the embodiment of patience, unselfishness, and unquenchable hope for the future of her child. The rest of us can only marvel at this transfiguration.

Knowing that patience wears thin at times, that unselfishness can at length get wearisome, and that hope needs constant nourishing, mothers may sometimes ask if all the tributes heaped upon them today are deserved.

But only a mother would question that.

The world knows that it is the mother who shapes the destiny of the child—and hence of the community and the nation. To those who shy away from sentiment, the cold facts of history and the banal experiences of every-day life remain as unmistakable evidence of what mothers mean to us all. Great men have never failed to pay homage to their mothers. On the other side of the ledger, visit any juvenile court to find out what happens when the influence of good motherhood is lacking.

The honor bestowed upon them today, most mothers will simply take as a challenge to be better mothers. That is their characteristic. Not for themselves do they achieve goodness; it is for their children.

And it is the unselfishness of mothers in little things—the time, the sorrow, the labor they give without stint—that enshrines them in the hearts of all of us. That is what makes us use motherhood as a symbol for all that is greatest in patriotism, in charity, in mercy. That is why nothing that can be said today quite measures up to the job of saying, in an unaffected youngster's voice: "Mom, you are swell."

But the Author Kept the Money

"ONLY INADEQUATE men need money," said a young college instructor who had just received $50,000 for the movie rights of his novel. "I hope to teach my students that the more education a man has, the less money he needs," added the author, an instructor in Suffolk university, Boston.

He kept the money, though. He put it in a bank as a trust fund for his wife and two children.

Many people, including the author's family, will be inclined to change the words to read: "Men needing money are inadequate." Sometimes it is true.

The young man really has a point, however. The more highly educated a man is, the more inner resources he is likely to have, the more power to enjoy what the song means, "the best things in life are free." The lavish living and spending of Hollywood were doubtless sharply contrasted in his mind with the sober "plain living and high thinking" of a New England college. The quiet walk, the book by the fire, the pleasant discussion with one's peers have done much to develop the high thinking of the great minds of New England. In Hollywood, money cost is high and the results are apt to be of little permanent value to the individual.

Before he gets much older, the young man may sometimes feel inadequate himself. It is nice to know that he kept the money and put it away with New Engand thrift. It may yet give his children that education without which they would need so much more.

Trailerites Find Happiness Formula

STATISTICS compiled by the Trailer Coach Manufacturers association are said to prove that the divorce rate among those who live in trailers is fifty per cent under that of those who live in more spacious permanent quarters.

One advantage quoted is the lower cost of living in a trailer, said to be as much as $100 a month less than that in a permanent dwelling. This would leave a pleasant margin for avoidance of friction over finances.

Another point might be the enforced simplicity of life under near-gypsy conditions. Social life is perforce simple and informal, and neighborhood gatherings frequent and enjoyable. Social competition is at a minimum in a trailer camp and simple friendliness usually is the only passport needed for entrance into the group.

Life in a trailer partakes somewhat of the flavor of early pioneer living. In the early small settlements everyone lived simply and on the same level. The family was a strong group and neighborliness was necessary as well as pleasant. People who shed larger community responsibilities to choose trailer living are adopting the standards of an earlier day.

Talk Would Be Futile

TALK of a conversation between Truman and Stalin to dispel the recurrent war uneasiness is going around Washington. That is probably as far as it will get, for several reasons. This is an election year and the Russians would not be likely to take too seriously any commitments made by a U. S. official until after the vote is counted in November.

More important from the American point of view is that in Russia this is NOT an election year. In fact an "election," Russian style, wouldn't make any difference. We have learned that so long as the communist totalitarians are in power their words mean nothing.

By their acts we have come to know the Russians. And while a discussion to settle troublesome issues is certainly the sensible way to act, it is not a method in which we can any longer have confidence if the Russians share the conversation.

A Tennessee official is embarrassed. Tax collections totaled more than $100,000,000 and his adding machine went only to 99,000,000. Any Washington bureaucrat could explain that after 99,000,000 you don't bother to count.

A Voice From the Country

South Improved By Economic Changes

By LOUIS BROMFIELD

THIS is a paean of praise to what is going on below the Mason-Dixon line and, in particular, to the state of North Carolina. During the past year, the writer has covered most of the southern and southwestern states and everywhere there are signs of the economic and social revolution which has been in progress, partly unnoticed, for the past 8 to 10 years. The process of regeneration is based upon growing industrial development and improvement in agriculture. There is some social ferment in progress but it is a good ferment which promises to solve in time many of the economic, racial and social problems which have plagued that part of the U. S. almost since the beginning.

BROMFIELD

As new factories are established, as a better agriculture increases yields and income, wages go up, employment increases, living standards improve. When these things happen, prejudice and intolerance decline, for both prejudice and intolerance all too often are the product of a depressed economy under which the ignorant and under-privileged are perpetually seeking scapegoats to excuse their own misery and failure.

Historically speaking, it is probable that sooner or later the South would have arrived at a low point of economic depression even if there had been no war between the states, for almost the whole of its economy was based upon a miserable and devastating single-crop cotton and tobacco agriculture.

It had no industry and the agricultural income, which declined steadily under erosion and evil farming practices, was drained off almost at once into the North and into the Northwest to buy lanterns, harness, fertilizer, overalls, and what you will.

The great Georgia liberal, Henry Grady, once summed up the situation beautifully in the epitaph of a Southern cotton farmer in which he pointed out that the only material thing concerned in his life and death which did not come from the North and East was the soil in which he was buried.

All that has changed or is changing. The sound government policy during the war of scattering new industrial plants throughout the nation, instead of concentrating them more and more in the North and East, is paying off big dividends not only to the South but to the economy of the whole nation.

In the past, some Southern states have been at times more liabilities than assets to the nation, with the deficit paid off by citizens elsewhere in taxes, price supports, subsidies, etc.

The end of that situation is in sight, although federal grants in aid of education are still important to some states of the deep South.

* * *

Improvement Helps Nation.

THE REASON for the change, of course, lies in a steadily improved agriculture, new industries and the employment of mechanical and technological improvements in both fields.

King Cotton as a single-crop tyrant is being dethroned by live stock, grass and diversified farming.

With all-season grazing, the lack of necessity for heavy capital investment in winter shelter, a development of rich legume grass forage and the consequent low labor cost, the South could long ago have taken the great feeding industry away from the Middle-West. It is the bad fortune of the South and the good fortune of the Middle-West that the South has been so slow in developing its great advantages.

In certain southern areas, the increasing yield per acre of cotton obtained through a better agriculture, the technological advances in the employment of mechanical cotton pickers and strippers; improved seed and really modern cotton gins are rapidly establishing a cotton agriculture which can compete with and undersell the cheapest labor in the world and save the taxpayers in the rest of the nation hundreds of millions of dollars in subsidies and support prices paid to encourage and preserve what was one of the most wretched agricultures in the world.

Only the big absentee landlord and a few small farmers are content to go on having the rest of us support them.

But I meant to emphasize the revolution in North Carolina and the great advances made by that state as agriculture improves and the industrial-agricultural balance becomes more and more established on a solid basis. Agricultural income there was increased in five years from about 200 millions to nearly 800 millions. And the increase is felt not only in the state itself but the whole of the nation.

The old look of shabbiness long associated with the South, has virtually disappeared. And as income and economic prosperity increase, prejudice and intolerance begin to weaken.

The South and Southwest are new frontiers with immense possibilities for investment in both industry and agriculture. They are good places for ambitious and energetic young men and women to go and make their way.

There are great opportunities there which no longer exist in the overcrowded North and East. And as the South prospers and develops, the taxes and prices of the rest of the nation will decline. What is happening there is of vast importance to everyone of us.

SURGEONS are reported to have achieved an almost instantaneous cure for the drug habit. The operation is called prefrontal lobotomy. The surgeon drills small holes at each side of the patient's skull and cuts the pathways to the front part of the brain.

The operation is said to short-circuit the part of the brain which causes some persons to worry excessively. No worries, no need for drugs.

If this thing really works out you may expect to see a prospective patient walking into the office of your favorite surgeon any day now saying "drill me doc, I'm worried sick about those dog-gonned potato bugs."

Thoughts On Mother's Day

By ANNE CAMPBELL

We never tell our mother what she means
To us as we grow older. Childhood was
A period of glad remembered scenes.
We told her then in many a loving clause,
Calling her "pretty mamma," weeping when
She left us for an hour, but we grew dumb
With time's advancing. We had few words then,
And cannot speak now, with a larger sum.

She has deep wisdom, so she reads our hearts.
Careless as we have grown, her smile is warm.
She knows the loving phrase that never starts.
As if we spoke it. She has all the charm
Of her lost youth, added to what she's learned
From a long life: and she can even break
Through silence to achieve the praise, well-earned,
We cannot voice even for her dear sake.

All of these words that we have never said
May come back to reproach us when she lies
In the long quiet slumber of the dead.
The tears we never saw in her kind eyes
May fall from ours when we recall the time
We might have spoken from the deep recess
Of over-burdened hearts. Stabbed by our crime
Of silence, we shall know unhappiness.

British Conceal Arab-Nazi Intrigue

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — One of the richest war prizes captured from the Germans was a series of Nazi documents on Hitler's secret deals. These gave a gold mine of information on Nazi intrigue all over the world and should help the American people to avoid war in the future.

Many of these documents have now been made public. But significantly, highly illuminating German secrets pertaining to the Arabs so far have not. They are especially enlightening today in view of the Palestine crisis and the Arab claim that they deserve world sympathy.

PEARSON

British diplomats, this columnist is informed, were bitter when they first learned of Arab-Nazi intrigue at a time when the British were fighting with their backs to the wall near Suez. But despite British resentment, the texts of the Nazi messages have not been made public, even though captured at the expense of Anglo-American blood.

British diplomats have admitted that pressure from Washington is the reason for suppressing these documents. The U. S. Defense Department—which means Forrestal — plus American oil are not anxious to embarrass the Arab leaders. That apparently is why the American public does not know that King Farouk of Egypt furnished war secrets to Field Marshal Rommel when the British had their backs to the wall in Egypt.

It also remains a top secret that King Farouk corresponded with Hitler during the war and that Rachid el Gailani, former Minister-President of Iraq, received bribes from the Nazis, and that King Ibn Saud also dickered with Hitler.

However, this column has been able to obtain copies of some of the secret Arab-Nazi correspondence. Here is one letter dated March 24, 1943, in which King Farouk of Egypt informed German Ambassador Ettel that he was "still hoping for an Axis victory." The letter from Ambassador Ettel to Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop follows:

"Secret State Matter

"Berlin, March 24, 1943

"Ambassador Ettel

"The confidential agent who transmitted a message from the Reich to King Farouk, has, in the meantime, returned from Egypt. During his stay he had two lengthy conversations with King Farouk. In these conversations the King gratefully acknowledged the security measures which the Reich had taken for his person and the manner in which this delicate question had been handled. King Farouk instructed the confidential agent to convey the King's gratitude to the Foreign Minister of the Reich.

"The King also informed the confidential agent that, as in the past, he was still hoping for an Axis victory. Specifically, the King declared that the rumors which were being circulated about a rapprochement between him and the democracies, were nothing else but a matter of political expediency and shrewdness, necessary for the then prevailing circumstances. The King also expressed his thanks for the dilatory way in which the matter of Prince Mansur's departure from Istanboul had been handled. Under the present circumstances, the King no longer objected to the Prince going to Italy or Germany.

"Finally, the King instructed the confidential agent to convey his best wishes to the Mufti of Jerusalem and to all those who work with him for the success and the victory of the Axis.

"Submitted to the Foreign Minister of the Reich.

Sgd. Ettel."

Real Estate Lobby.

FOR sheer effrontery, last week's battle over the Cain housing bill—a half-baked measure to guarantee the profits of private builders, while ignoring the vital need for low-cost public housing and slum clearance—tops anything the real estate lobby has pulled in recent times.

Senator Harry P. Cain, Republican, of Washington, elected as an out-and-out real estate champion, certainly lived up to the expectation of his sponsors. He waited until Senators Ralph Flanders of Vermont, John Sparkman of Alabama, Bob Taft of Ohio and other proponents of public housing were absent from town before asking Senate approval of the real estate bonanza.

Meantime, house leaders were keeping their own chamber in recess, standing by to pass the bill once the senate had acted. Meantime, also, sitting big as life on the senate floor were those tireless pals of the real estate lobby, Representative Jesse Wolcott of Michigan and Ralph Gamble of New York. House majority leader Charles Halleck of Indiana also sat eagerly on a sofa at the edge of the senate floor.

These three musketeers occasionally huddled with young Senator Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin, another friend of the lobby.

However, when alert Senators William Fulbright of Arkansas, Democrat, and Irving Ives of New York, Republican, finally blocked action until foes of the legislation could be present to vote, Halleck's face blazed with anger.

As he left the senate, muttering with rage, a senator called after him: "Well, I guess you boys took a licking."

Halleck turned rubbed his nose like a prize-fighter.

"Yeah, maybe we did, but just wait!" barked the Hoosier congressman.

Note—House leaders plan to block the Taft-Ellender-Wagner low-cost housing bill in Congressman Wolcott's Banking and Currency Committee. Although it passed the senate, the bill is already gathering dust in Wolcott's pigeonhole.

Timely Editorial

Let Grandma Rock 'Em.

Psychologists of late have been pretty decent about admitting that they were wrong and Grandmother was right in picking up the baby when it bawled.

If the number of cold-eyed young monsters now among us seem unnecessarily large it is worth reflecting that it might have been worse but for the many grandmothers who never believed in denying love, but went ahead and followed their immemorial instinct, hauling out the old rocking chair and giving the baby what, in the light of the latest findings, it required.

Also, the best baby-sitter of them all is Grandmother, as the lady president of a congress of parents and teachers tells a Georgia gathering.

This of course is no news, but only proof of the experience of countless couples in our time and heaven knows how many generations in ages past.—Detroit News.

Assignment: America

Celebration and a Sob

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WASHINGTON — Even after three years, it is difficult to write of that day without slipping into a feeling of morbid sadness and futility.

It was not that the day itself was so much worse than others which had gone before or others to follow. Comparatively speaking, it was much better than most. It was just that we had looked forward to it for so long and that we had expected such a great deal from it.

And in that respect, that day, three years ago, when the war in Europe officially ended was a great disappointment to us—or perhaps disillusionment is a better word. We fought against the feeling all day and through the night, but there it was and finally we took it to bed with us . . .

The day dawned clear and cool there at Klein Wanzleben, the little village not far from Magdeburg, Germany, and near the western bank of the Elbe river.

Most of us in the press camp had sat up until the wee small hours. We knew the surrender story was coming, and that it was just a matter of time.

When it came, we would have to get "reaction" stories from the soldiers along the combat line—such as there was at that time. Mostly, the boys who had been checked at the Elbe or pulled back by high policy were just sitting along the west bank, sweating out the end.

For a jeep-driver, I drew an ex-rifleman who had a silver plate for a jaw-bone and a lot of other combat mementos. He said the medics had made him look handsomer than he used to be, but he was afraid his wife would make him marry her all over again when he went home.

We drove a long ways, and asked a lot of G.I.'s how they felt about V-E day. Most of them didn't. They just shrugged. No reaction. So what? When I told them folks were celebrating in Washington and Paris and London, they said they'd celebrate too, if they were there—but they'd just be celebrating the fact that they were there.

A few career soldiers pointed to the Russian sentries across the Elbe and wanted to know who was so sure the war was over. Even then, such talk had a forbidding sound, a frightening sound. But, of course, being officers and what-not, they refused to be quoted on that kind of talk—it would have been asking for court-martial—so that wasn't any printable reaction either.

We didn't ask the guys who were still fighting German holdout pockets how they felt about the war's end. Ditto a couple of graves registration crews we passed.

At noon, we wrapped a wet G.I. towel around a bottle of champagne (there was plenty of it around then) and held it out of the jeep, driving at sixty or so, until it cooled enough to uncork it without half the stuff fizzing away. Then we ate cheese sandwiches and drank champagne out of canteen cups. Then we kept going, hunting reaction . . .

* * *

Punch Without Punch.

Back at the press camp, confirmation of the war's end had come through officially, so we all filed our reaction stories, mostly the same kind of stuff. Then we just sat around, not saying much.

Finally somebody said we should celebrate, so we got busy and really worked at it. We located a bowl about as big as a washtub and somebody scrounged some ice, and we made the great-grandaddy of all punches. Each guy donated a bottle of something or other, until it was a kind of a liquid Mulligan stew with the kick of a French seventy-five.

Everybody conscientiously went to work on it, but somehow it didn't take. A few Johnny-come-lately's got high and happy, but the rest just sat around and stared into space, seemingly cold sober.

Too much had happened, too many who should have been there hadn't made it, too many ghosts of the past and fears of the future filtered through the night air. Finally, forced laughter gave way to total silence, and then the boys drifted off to bed . . .

One of the last to hit the sack, I passed one cot where a much-wounded infantry lieutenant was playing solitaire, placing each card with purposeful concentration atop another on the army blanket. Somewhere nearby, I heard someone crying, softly, quietly.

Whoever he was, he was a lucky one. Most of the boys, somewhere along the road which led to the banks of the Elbe, had forgotten how to cry. Otherwise, a chorus of muted sobbing would have been the dominant sound of celebration on that night of V-E day in Germany three years ago.

Gardens Without Dirt

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Have you read about those new dirtless gardens?

Amazing affairs!

Hydroponic gardening, it's called, and as proof of its success he cities cases of acres of lusty vegetables that have never known old fashioned digging or dirt.

Instead, the seeds are sown in gravel and water and nourished on mineral salt. Professional gardeners have known of this trick for years and during the last war thousands of soldiers lived on these plump, green exotics and never knew the difference.

A whole garden grown on your window sill—sounds spectacular, doesn't it? And looks as entrancing as it sounds. There's no doubt it's front page news in the agricultural world. And yet—

I can't help feeling that there's something missing in these glamorous fruits. Somehow they're just too smooth, too brilliant, too perfect for our common use.

They're like so many modern folk who seem to spring full bloom into life without ever knowing its salty hardships.

They too have missed the backache and grime and broken finger nails. But has it really been for their good?

Are they better for never knowing life's common toil . . . for skipping the tests and challenges our fathers and mothers knew?

Or would they be richer, stronger and wiser if they'd shared the dirt and drudgery which is our common heritage?

Somehow I think we need dirt.

Reuther Thinks Shooting Was 'Professional Job'

DETROIT —(AP)— Walter P. Reuther, red-haired president of the CIO-United Auto Workers, said Saturday "somebody, somewhere may talk some day" and thus give the clue that will lead police to his would-be assassin.

Meeting the press for the first time since his April 20 shooting, Reuther said he was sure it was "a professional job," done by hired killers.

The best chance for catching his assailants, he said, lies in the hope that some underworld character will eventually talk out of turn.

Wan and still admittedly in great pain, Reuther told of his thoughts that followed the blast of the gun fired through his kitchen window:

"My arm hung like a limp rag and I was sure it was gone. When I felt the slugs in my chest, I thought maybe I'd die. But I wasn't so afraid of these things.

"The thing that absolutely terrorized me was that my daughter might come downstairs and see my lying there. What an awful impact it would have been on her young mind."

The daughter, five-year-old Linda, is a fellow patient now in New Grace hospital, one floor above her wounded father. She had her tonsils removed Saturday morning.

It will be only about one more week before he leaves the hospital, Reuther said, but three or four months before his arm can be removed from a cast. As part of his treatment, his wounded right arm is given hundreds of electric shocks daily in an effort to restore the damaged nerves.

Physicians have said they believe Reuther has a chance to regain full use of the member.

"I'm the luckiest guy in the world," he said, "just to be alive."

Treatment Ends Pain

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A new form of penicillin for injection in medical treatment was announced Saturday by Wyeth, Inc., of Philadelphia. The company said the new product "will do away with the pain associated with the injection of earlier forms of penicillin."

IF STRIKE, EVERYBODY'S LAID OFF—Trainmen of Central Railroad of New Jersey, R. J. Stewart and Arthur Kraft, read an order on the Jersey City station master's office informing them all employes will be laid off in event of a railroad strike. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen is not involved in current negotiations going on in Washington.

Germans Seek Easier Terms On Surrender Anniversary

(By Associated Press)

German politicians asked Saturday — the third anniversary of their country's surrender to the Allies—that the victors grant a peace treaty which will prevent Germany from perishing in misery.

In Moscow, where the anniversary will be observed today, the Literary Gazette hailed the occasion with a statement that humanity's fate is being decided not by atomic bombs, but by the every day efforts of the Soviet people "directed towards the final victory—the victory of communism."

The European phase of World War Two ended officially three years ago when German military leaders signed an act of surrender in Berlin May 8, 1945.

On the previous day they had signed a statement of unconditional surrender in Reims, France.

German political spokesmen complained their country was being made the victim of growing differences between Russia and the western occupation powers.

Said Berlin's conservative Christian Democrat Union in a public appeal to the American, British, French and Russian occupation powers:

"Don't let our great nation perish in misery. Don't let us continue to be the victim of your differences."

The newspaper asked for a peace treaty, a central German government to sign it, unification of partitioned Germany and a return of all prisoners of war.

American troops in Germany and Austria celebrated with a holiday but there were no ceremonies. Lt. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, the American commander in Austria, told his forces "today we are engaged in the task of healing the wounds of war and ensuring a basis for the reconstruction of peace. . . . Our goal is peace—stable, just and enduring. God willing, that goal will be achieved."

Corn Closes At Day's Low

CHICAGO —(AP)— Corn ended with a decidedly weak tone on the board of trade Saturday, carrying other grains down with it. Cash houses sold the yellow cereal freely and prices retreated for losses running to more than 3 cents. The close was at the day's low.

A good part of the selling in all grains was attributed to traders who did not want to carry grains over the week-end. Some recent buying has been based on the prospect of a railroad strike.

Wheat closed 2 to 2¾ lower, May $2.42 ¼-¾, corn was 2 ⅜-3 ¼ lower, May 2.18 ¼-¾, oats were ⅛ to 1 cent lower, May $1.12 ¼-⅝, and soybeans were 4 cents lower, May $3.85.

U. S. Clears German Harbor

Trade Reviving Port of Bremen

BREMEN, Germany—(AP)—The port of Bremen, knocked completely out of the way by Allied action, again is in business—in fact more business than ever.

On a recent day, the port handled more tonnage than on any previous day since it came into use as a trading center centuries ago.

The story is different for Hamburg, once one of the world's great ports. British officials say it has been restored sufficiently to handle 40 per cent of its 1936 tonnage but they never have been asked to cope with more than 25 per cent. Three-quarters of the city, which was one of the RAF's first targets, is in various stages of disintegration.

Brement still presents a picture of war damage, but recovery of the port area has progressed at a fast pace.

Stanley A. Clem, American chief of port operations on the Weser river, drew an optimistic picture of the part Bremen and Bremerhaven can play in the revival of western European trade.

In the busiest pre-war year, the tonnage handled was 12,000,000 tons, against Hamburg's 26,000,000 tons a year. Now Bremen is back near its pre-war level but Hamburg only a little over 25 per cent.

When the Americans took over the Bremen enclave as a port of entry for supplies for the U. S. occupation forces, every basin in the port was blocked by bomb wreckage or sunken vessels. Now all but two or three small basins are clear. In some cases the berthage had been improved by dredging. Ships up to 31 feet 6 inches draught can now be accommodated.

BOMBS CUT CAPACITY

At the end of the war, the cargo handling capacity had been reduced to 20 per cent. It is now 90 per cent of pre-war, which combined with speedy turnaround makes the port capable of handling more than ever before, Clem said.

This cheerful state of affairs has not been achieved without difficulties, however.

In a tour of the docks one's most vivid impression is of acres of wrecked sheds. Piles of bricks and twisted girders represent what was once valuable storage space. Before the war there were 280,000 square meters of warehousing. At the end of the war there were only 20,000 square meters. Two years of work have added another 30,000. A further 32,000 square meters is complete except for 42,000 square meters of roofing paper.

In the course of two years Clem has reduced his American staff from 137 to two. "The Germans run this port and I see they do it in l with the laid down military government policy," he said.

The outlook in Hamburg, however, is anything but reassuring for its 1,500,000 residents. British officials say that unless Hamburg can get trade to support its topheavy maritime structure, the population will have to be reduced.

Just what part Hamburg will play in the increased western European trade expected to result from the European Recovery program is still uncertain. Hamburg is expected to handle only 7,300,000 tons of trade this year.

HANDLED HUGE TONNAGE

Because Hamburg was linked by inland waterways to the greater part of Germany and most of central Europe, it was before the war a great port. It handled a tonnage rivalled on the continent only by Rotterdam and Antwerp.

In addition it had a huge shipbuilding industry. This was greatly developed for war purposes by the Hitler regime. Probably best known of the shipyards is Blohm and Voss, where many of the German navy's destroyers were built. Here too was the Blohm and Voss seaplane factory.

If you were suddenly transported to the center of the city today, you would have an impression of vigorous life and fair prosperity. Standing on the bridge between the city's two lakes you would little realize the destruction wrought by war time air raids.

The larger lake, dotted with pleasure craft, is surrounded by elegant villas. The smaller lake, square in shape, is flanked by impressive office buildings. The bustle of this cosmopolitan scene is invigorating.

But those villas you saw in the distance are mostly fire blackened shells. Behind them lie acres of destroyed residential districts. The imposing offices house government agencies, not men of commerce.

The only relic of the city's former huge trade with central Europe is the flow of imports and exports to and from Czechoslovakia. The remainder of the eastern hinterland that used to give Hamburg 50 per cent of its business seems to be firmly cut off by the iron curtain.

The problem for the planners is how to adjust the city's trade to the new geographical and economic factors of Europe—factors that are highly uncertain at this stage.

Jury Indicts Wife Slayer

NEW PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— The Tuscarawas county grand jury Saturday returned an indictment charging Roy Baker, 22, of Odver with first degree manslaughter in the fatal beating of his 19-year-old wife.

Prosecutor Vernon Lee previously reported Baker had confessed to beating his wife, Roxie, in an argument over sex relations.

Paul Cash, 35-year-old Dover boxing promoter, had been charged with second degree murder in Mrs. Baker's death and had been free under $8,000 bond. The prosecutor said the grand jury took no action respecting Cash and that charges against him have been dropped.

Lee said Baker had signed a written statement, saying he had beaten his wife until she dropped to the floor semi-conscious at about 10:30 p. m. April 6.

Baker is a steel mill worker.

2 Drivers Fined On Speeding Counts

August H. Grotegut, 568 Westview Boulevard, and Kent H. Niswander, Lucas were each fined $10 and costs in municipal court yesterday for speeding.

Five-dollar fines were assessed against Curtis B. Glenn, Mansfield, R. D. 4, for failure to stop at a stop sign and Kelsie B. Kilgore, Shiloh, for operating a motor vehicle with a temporary permit, unaccompanied by a licensed driver.

MODEL—Frances Garman of New York, chosen by group of American art dealers as best artist's model of 1948, holds a sculptured brass cat that will be exhibited over the nation.

CAR SIDESWIPED

W. M. Caldwell, Belmont avenue, told sheriff's deputies Friday night that a hit-skip driver sideswiped his car on Springmill road near Lumbermens Heights. The left front fender of his car was damaged.

Plans Motel Near Willard

WILLARD—I. E. Palmer, former manager of the Palmer House in Greenwich, has purchased 30 lots in Willard Heights facing Highway 224 and has broken ground for a motel.

He plans to build a restaurant and over-night cabins, put in driveways, and landscape the property. The main building is to be 20x42 feet and four cabins will be started at once, building additional ones as they are needed.

On the lots which are not used for the motel, Mr. Palmer says he expects to build homes to sell. The lots were purchasd from Fred Heisler.

The state has inspeted the site and approved the plans and Mr. Palmer expects to cater to the increasing tourist trade on Highway 224, one of the main highways across Ohio.

Real Estate Broker Sells Big Property In Pint-Sized Office

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER

NEW YORK—(AP)—The United States is just one big real estate development to David B. Gadlow.

Gadlow lives in Ross, Marin county, California, goes to church in Boston, and works in New York, Dallas, Chicago, Atlanta, Omaha—any place where he finds a buyer or seller for property with a value running into millions.

In the last three years he has sold $40,000,000 worth of real estate. He specializes almost entirely in all cash transactions. He says he gets the most fun closing these big deals in his small office on his native Manhattan island, because it was here that he got his start as a boy—selling penny newspapers near Wall street.

Gadlow went back downtown to that same neighborhood recently to sell the enormous home office building of the Western Union Telegraph company for $12,500,000. It was one of the highest prices ever involved in the sale of a single New York building. He hopped out to Omaha to find a buyer—the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance society.

That was the kind of transaction many people puzzle over, and the kind Gadlow concentrates on—in which a company sells its real estate to a big institution and then leases the property right back, remaining as a tenant in a building it formerly owned.

Such deals form one of the newest wrinkles in big time real estate. The Institute of Life Insurance says that in the last year life insurance companies have bought $120,000,000 worth of properties under such arrangements.

SAW ADVANTAGES

Gadlow, one of the first to see the advantages for both buyer and seller in these transactions, has become a leader in the field. He has sold properties to Yale university and other educational institutions, various life insurance companies and several charitable foundations seeking long term investments.

The broker explains that these sales almost invariably involve properties occupied by only one tenant, like a department store.

"The seller," he says, "gets cash to use in his business without the expense of floating a loan. His business goes right on at the old stand by virtue of a long lease. He can deduct all rent payments as a business expense when he files his income tax return.

"The deal is attractive to the buyer because he gets a steady income on the full value of the property. A mortgage loan, on the other hand, would cover only part value, which would mean a smaller outlet for investment funds.

By owning the property, such investors have no worry about possible foreclosure expenses and delays. The nuisance of managing the property is eliminated by the terms of the lease—the tenant manages the property, pays all taxes, assessments and upkeep.

"Most of these leases involve rents that include a fair rate of return on the investment as well as paying off the principal in the course of years."

Department stores and chain stores figure prominently in this trading, Gadlow explains, because retailers can get a "turnover" four times a year with the money obtained from the sale. Instead of that fund being tied up in the ownership of the building, it is put to work, buying more goods for sale.

LETTER CHANGES LIFE

David Gadlow got into this business of dealing in millions because his brother went horseback riding: Dave had advanced from office boy to assistant superintendent of a New York construction company when World War I began. He became a cadet in Columbia university's officers training camp in Connecticut. The war ended before he saw active service.

Then, on a cold and snowy day in 1921 he got a letter from his brother in the Army, stationed at the Presidio in San Francisco.

"I was out horseback riding yesterday in Golden Gate park," the letter said.

"That sentence changed the course of my life," Gadlow said. "I decided then and there to go to California."

To work his way to the West coast he got a job as a fireman on the S. S. Steel Exporter. But instead of taking him to the Pacific, the ship berthed at Le Havre, then Glasgow. That gave David a chance to visit an aunt in Scotland, but he had to work his way back to New York before the ship finally sailed for California by way of New Orleans and Panama.

His brother had been transferred by that time, and shortly after Gadlow landed on the West coast he had only 52 cents left in his pocket. He spent 50 cents for a room and threw the two cents out the window

BECOMES SALESMAN

The next morning he had to get a job—and did. He also got a $2 advance on his salary to keep him going.

He became a salesman in a real estate office specializing in store locations He worked so hard that by 1926 he could take a year off for a trip around the world.

Back home again he organized the Gadlow Chain Store Leasing company. This venture grew by shrinking into his present one-man, one-secretary office which simply carries his own full name.

One of Gadlow's early clients was a chain store organization which pioneered in the present movement of selling its properties and leasing them back. Gadlow saw big possibilities in the idea.

When Virginia passed the first law in 1943 to permit life insurance companies to buy real estate for investment the current trend began. Today 39 states and the District of Columbia permit such insurance company investment.

From San Francisco he lined up a seller in New York, a buyer in Greensboro, N. C. and sold property in Atlanta, Ga. It was the sale of the southern distributing plant of the Lerner Stores corporation, to the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance company of Greensboro, that started the ball rolling.

"How did you do it?" he was asked.

"Well, I'll tell you," he replied. "I'm feeling pretty good today and tomorrow I might not be feeling so good. So I'll give you the answer to that question right now for half a million dollars. That's probably half of what I'll be asking tomorrow."

Let's Face It, Men—

Women Better In Many Types of Jobs

By BOB EDWARDS

In the current Broadway hit, "Annie Get Your Gun," Ethel Merman—as Annie Oakley—sings a song to her man, "Anything You Can Do I Can Do Better." As a representative of womankind, she's probably right.

If she can't do better than a man, a woman can probably do just as well, if one is to believe some of Mansfield's more prominent businessmen and industrialist.

For example, the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank on West Fourth street uses women exclusively to operate the large and complicated "proof" machines used to check the bank's daily cash transactions.

In addition to the finger dexterity required to operate the over-sized and complicated keyboard, the girls must learn to recognize checks at a glance by their color and size, and at the same time note the amount of the check.

"Women are far better on that type of accounting operation than men," says Avery Hand jr., vice president of the bank. "During an eight-hour day the girls on our two proof machines can tabulate a total of 15,000 items.

"During the war," Hand continues, "I was on duty in the signal corps. We found that when WACs took over duties requiring a great deal of finger dexterity, such as operating a telephone switchboard, which men had been doing until then, efficiency jumped tremendously."

'AS WELL OR BETTER'

At the Dominion Electric company, plant manager Sam D. Lockshin, ten years at Dominion, says there's "very little in our factory that women can't do as well or better than men."

Only on heavy lifting jobs or other tasks where sheer muscle comes into play do the men surpass the women, and during the war, the gals did the lifting jobs, too.

Dominion has given much of its complicated assembly work over to the ladies. Fifty per cent of the firm's 1,000 employes are women. "And they're good," Lockshin says, proudly.

"They have the same endurance as men and greater dexterity," Lockshin explains. "They are far more consistent in production speed, too. If they set a high pace they stick with it, particularly on monotonous assembly jobs.

"Men, doing the same work, will work very irregularly. then turn out a lot of work, but They'll have brief flashes when then they'll slow down for a while, later to begin another fast working period."

During the war when Dominion was turning out incendiary bombs and most of their shop workers were women, the Elm street plant turned out more bombs per square foot of productive factory floor space than any similar plant in the country.

While explaining that many women are coming into factory work because of the upward living cost spiral, Lockshin says "Another reason why women are such good workers is because they either must work, or they love to work, These factors plus their ability makes them highly dependable labor."

Newfoundlanders Seeking Economic Union With U. S.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland —(AP)—Economic union with the United States has become one of the hottest issues in Newfoundland's forthcoming election to change its status as a colonial dependency of Great Britain.

The date for the balloting has not been finally fixed, but it probably will be early in June after the Newfoundland sealing fleets return and before the codfishing fleets go out That's the time when most voters will be at home

Already the people, from the capital to isolated outposts reachable only by ship or airplane, are being bombarded with campaign literature. Radio speeches are broadcast regularly and the campaign is assuming an intensity beyond the memory of the oldest residents.

Actually, although it is the one dominant topic, economic union with the United States will not appear on the ballot. The issue has been injected by a new political party

Newfoundland, the bleak, rock-ribbed island of 320,000 inhabitants at the mouth of the St. Lawrence river, once enjoyed independent dominion status like Canada. It reverted to colonial position in 1934 due to inability to manage its $100,000,000 national debt.

WAR AIDED FINANCES

Since then Newfoundland has been ruled by a crown-appointed governor and commissioners under a kind of bankruptcy arrangement War, with establishment of American military bases at St. John's, Argentia and Stephensville helped restore the island's finances.

Great Britain now has agreed to let Newfoundlanders choose a new form of government by plebiscite. The ballot, as authorized by Britain, provides these alternatives:

Confederation with Canada as the dominion's tenth province; return to the old independent status with a responsible government, or retention for other five years of the present commission government.

Early in the discussion, one group of Newfoundlanders sought consideration of closer trade and economic relations with the United States. This was ruled out as beyond the authority of the convention discussing the proposals for balloting.

Now a new party has been formed under the presidency of Chesley A. Crosbie, prominent sealer and businessman, to seek economic union with the United States by first winning a victory for responsible government.

Burmese Hang Former Premier

LONDON—(INS)—A Reuters dispatch from Rangoon said that former Burmese Premier U Saw was hanged Saturday for the July 19 assassination of Premier U Aung San and six cabinet members.

The news agency said that the execution took place early this morning in the Insein jail in Burma. U Saw, 48, and eight others were found guilty last Dec. 30 by a special tribunal in Rangoon and sentenced to death.

MOTHER, Is the Sweetest Word

The sweetest word in all this universe,
The one most sacred to the hearts of all
Is Mother, though a babe cannot converse.
It prattles this when it is very small;
All children lean upon this melody
Of Mother, and the love that it imparts—
There is no other word at all that we
Can substitute for Mother, in our hearts;
So many times a second it is said:
In every tongue it fills the constant hour—
A thousand times, a million times instead—
Oh, harken now it bursts into a flower
Of love, so sweet, yet ever wise and strong
It floods the earth with everlasting song.

Taft-Stassen Primary Fight Close, But Ohioan Holds Edge

Minnesotan's Nine Votes Inconclusive

Party Organization Results Opposing

By H. H. DAUGHERTY

COLUMBUS —(AP)— All except the practical politicians probably will be arguing for the next decade whether Ohio Republicans' favorite Son, Sen. Robert A. Taft, or Minnesota's former Gov. Harold E. Stassen came out best in their battle for 23 of this state's GOP presidential delegates.

The practical politicians, viewing the Philadelphia convention only in terms of votes for the various presidential candidates, will scarcely raise their eyebrows over the nine votes that Stassen took from Taft in Ohio.

If at any time either Taft or Stassen needs only nine votes for the nomination as the roll is being called at Philadelphia, they probably will get them before the results are announced, by delegations scrambling to get on the band wagon.

For those who like to argue over election results it might be well to point out that on Stassen's own method of calculation, Taft was the popular choice of Ohio voters to the tune of 51,000 votes.

Stassen during his Ohio campaign made public his own method for calculating his and Taft's comparative strength among Ohio voters. He said the vote for his lone delegate-at-large should be compared with the average vote for the nine Taft delegate-at-large candidates.

BRICKER LEADS LIST

The high of the Taft delegate slate was Senator John W. Bricker with 424,000 votes and the low man, former state Chairman Ed D. Schorr had 342,000. The average for the nine delegates was 375,000.

Stassen's lone delegate-at-large candidate, Carrington T. Marshall, received 324,000 votes or 51,000 less than the average of the nine Taft delegates.

Another point for argument is the effectiveness of party organization in a primary battle. Looking at the Democratic side, the picture presented is one of virtually complete impotency as reflected in the vote for governor.

Former Gov. Frank J. Lausche, virtually devoid of organization support, won a two-and-a-half to one victory over former Cleveland Mayor Ray T. Miller, who boasted virtually complete organization support throughout the state. Lausche's vote was 332,000 to 139,000 for Miller.

The Republican picture presents almost the opposite results in the battle between Taft and Stassen in the contest for presidential delegates. Here Taft had the support of the state and county organizations which generally are conceded as having done effective work in behalf of Taft delegates notwithstanding the loss of nine Taft delegates in the various contested districts.

All the Stassen delegates were obtained in the heavy industrial areas where organized labor is strong and was generally listed as opposed to Taft because of the Taft-Hartley labor law. Thus much of the Taft opposition in those districts probably was beyond the pale of any political party organization.

But just how potent is the labor union vote in an election also may be raised for argument. The CIO gave its endorsement to Miller in the Democratic gubernatorial race and Miller was virtually snowed under by Lausche.

Songwriter Credits Success to Luck, Energy

At 60, Irving Berlin Still Writes Song Hits

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK —(AP)— On Broadway, it's rare for a man to tell stories about himself which might indicate he was something less than an omnipotent genius.

That's only one of the reasons why Irving Berlin is rare. Another is his 40-year career in which he wrote more than 1,000 songs, published about 800 and accounted for dozens of the nation's biggest melody hits.

Interviewed on the approach of his 60th birthday (May 11), the dapper composer tried to dispel any ivory tower mystery that might surround the creation of song. Tunes might have become great, enduring symbols of a mass feeling or an era, but as far as Irving Berlin is concerned they were written only for a specific situation—a first act curtain or a movie production shot or a recruiting campaign.

"The public does something with the tunes after that," he said. "I wrote 'Oh, How I Hate To Get Up In The Morning' just to amuse some guys in my barracks (during World War I). Look what happened to it.

"'White Christmas' is a better example. The public read things into it I never intended. Of course, I'm thankful they did."

Shortly before the war Berlin had planned a musical revenue about holidays. For the Christmas scene he envisioned a group of sophisticates sitting around a Hollywood swimming pool, with cocktails and long cigaret hlders. "White Christmas" was written with that in mind.

"Here, I'll show you," he said, sitting down at his famous trick piano—it has a special lever which moves the whole keyboard into any key. Left to his own devices, Berlin could only play in F-sharp.

SINGS IN PIPING VOICE

In a piping voice, he played and sang the verse to "White Christmas"—about somebody who was tired of sunny Los Angeles and the swimming and the war weather in December and who was dreaming of spending the holiday midst snow. That was the extent of the man's suffering. No foxholes.

"You can see what that would have done to the song's future," the composer said. "Every night I thank heaven nobody remembers that verse."

The musical was shelved but the song eventually wound up in a movie. With the help of Bing Crosby it became a national symbol of GI longing for home and peace. Somewhere along the line, the verse was lost in the shuffle.

"White Christmas" has become a phenomenon in Tin Pan Alley. The most successful of all the 800-odd Berlin tunes published since 1907, it has sold 3,500,000 sheet music copies, untold millions of records. Every Christmas, it sells 350,000 copies. Its composer is realistic about it.

"I think it's the most valuable song copyright in the world," he said. "I wouldn't sell it for half a million. No, I wouldn't compare it to great classical ballads like "The Rosary" and others, but remember most of those great ballads are now in the public domain. The copyright on "White Christmas" has 49 years to go."

As in the days when he played in bowery saloons and wrote his first tune, "Marie From Sunny Italy," Berlin still can't read or write music. He plays by ear and a long-time assistant sets down the music. Since the composer spends a lot of time in Hollywood or travelling in Mexico, he frequently telephones a new song to New York, playing or singing it while the assistant records the notes.

THINKS OUT SONGS

Most of his work is done away from the piano. Every note of "Doin' What Comes Naturally," from Berlin's smash hit "Annie Get Your Gun," was worked out in his head. There's no set pattern: the melody or lyric may come first. He usually works fast. Comedy songs, he finds, are the toughest. A long song, he said, can be difficult when it has to be very simple.

"I don't believe in inspiration," Berlin said. "I just believe in talent and energy enough to work something out. You can call that last thing ham or ego. Whatever the motive, you need the driving force. I still like people to like my music. That's why I still write it."

He is no prima donna about working conditions. In Hollywood, it's mostly day work. Elsewhere, Berlin prefers to write lyrics at night but he doesn't need a certain kind of place to compose best.

"I work in a cab or on the street or in an office," he said. "I find you take your atmosphere with you."

"I've always said that I've got only seven or eight really different tunes in my system. The rest are variations. You know, it's amazing how often you can use the same tune over again with a few different twists. It's like reassembling furniture. You work with the same elements, but get a different result."

NAMES FAVORITES

Berlin doesn't have one favorite among his songs. If pressed, he'll name a few which he likes for different reasons. Here are the top six, not in the order of preference:

"Alexander's Ragtime Band"; "God Bless America" (written and shelved by the composer during the first World war because it was "too sticky for the times," and then revived in 1940); "White Christmas;" "Always" (Berlin's wedding present to his wife, the daughter of the late Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph company; "A Pretty Girl Is Like A Melody," and "Oh, How I Hate To Get Up In The Morning."

Two others were important to him personally. Until 1929 and the market crash, in which Berlin "lost everything," came easily to him. So did money. After the crash, when he was broke, he seemed to be trying too hard, he says.

In 1930 and 1931 he wrote many songs and none of them clicked. He felt he was finished. Then came "Say It Isn't So" and "How Deep Is the Ocean." That ended the Berlin slump.

Right now he's working on a movie musical, "Easter Parade," which has new as well as old Berlin melodies. He calls it "the best musical I've ever been connected with—and that's not just a plug." Also, he's working on a broadway show tentatively titled "Stars On My Shoulder." It's about a general who suddenly finds himself forgotten after the war.

Seek New Bids On Paint Job

Bids on exterior painting of eight buildings at the Richland County home will be re-advertised Monday, county commissioners said yesterday.

First bids on the painting were turned down because specifications for the work were not detailed in the way the commissioners wanted the job done.

New specifications, placing job costs at $4,500, call for two coats of paint on the main building at the home, the adjacent tenant house, main barn and straw barn, wagon shed, chicken house and hog pen, laundry and boiler house, garage and slaughter house.

Also called for are repairs to the glass and glazing.

ANNUAL MEETING SET

The annual business meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church will be held Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Officers will be chosen.

Glass Firms, Unions Agree

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Plate Glass company here announced that firm and the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company jointly agreed with the CIO-Federation of Glass, Ceramic and Silica Workers of America to extend their present contract from May 1, 1948, to May 1, 1949 with no change in wage scales.

A Pittsburgh Plate Glass company spokesman said wage rates may be re-opened once during the life of the present contract. The earliest possible date for wage talks will be July 1.

The new agreement was adopted at recent negotiations at Atlantic City, N. J. It affects about 20,000 workers over the country, including those in the window glass plant at Mt. Vernon, O.

Balts Wage Bitter War Against Reds

Underground Forces Slaying Thousands

By SIGRID ARNE

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Strange reports of bitter guerilla warfare between Russians and underground armies in the Baltic states —Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia —are piling up in Washington, London and Stockholm.

The reports are being published in regular news letters issued here by the Lithuanian legation; in a "Newsletter from Behind the Iron Curtain," which is compiled from Baltic underground sources in Stockholm, and in several small pamphlets which are issued by the exiled Baltic diplomats here and in London.

A digest of their reports has been presented by the exiles to the United Nations as an "Appeal."

Much of the information is confirmed here by U. S. state department officials who, however, refuse to give out details, one official, nevertheless, says that the Baltic reports appear reliable. They check with information which the American government has received from other sources.

News from the three little nations on the Baltic sea seep out to Sweden and Britain through Balt sailors who escape in fishing smacks under cover of fog. The Baltic news letters say the waters off the Baltic shores are patrolled by Russian planes and small naval vessels to prevent such escapes.

Lithuanian, Latvian and Estonian news letters all report armed and mobile guerilla armies in their home lands. They say the bands hide out in the forests, live off the land, and use captured German and Russian artillery. They wear captured Russian uniforms, in order to confuse the regular Russian troops. They have both mobile artillery and small tanks.

The news letters indicate that the Lithuanians, who have the largest population, are the most active. They say that Russia is keeping six divisions in the country, as well as 75,000 secret police.

Last summer the news letters say the Russians sent additionally five air squadrons and more infantry. Guerilla sniping has been so severe in some areas that Russian troops are confining themselves to protecting convoys, railways, highways and bridges.

Lithuanian reports say that several Red army men "who have become disgusted with the Soviet dictatorship" have joined the partisans. Up to the present none of these former Red army members are known to have turned traitor to their Baltic friends.

Dates and places of battles which have taken place are issued here by Juozas Kajeckas, attache of the Lithuanian legation. They include:

April, 1946, in the Kedainiai district. NKVD troops versus 70 Partisans; 12 Partisans dead. Close to 100 KVD killed.

September, 1945, in the Raseiniai district; 138 Partisans versus 700 NKVD. The battle lasted 20 hours; 73 Partisans and 430 Russians killed.

Hundreds of such skirmishes have been reported. The Partisans have the advantage of fighting in forests they know. But the Russians have modern artillery and good communications.

However, the Lithuanians report that on the average seven Russians are killed for one Partisan. Some 8,000 Lithuanians have already died in guerilla war.

Reports from Latvia and Estonia, which are farther north, are fewer. But occasionally refugees from both those countries get south into Lithuania, and escape to Sweden over the shortest water route.

Together the three little nations have fewer than the city of New York. They were occupied by the Red armies in June 1940, and two months later, with the Red armies there, they voted to become Soviets. The U. S. government has never recognized that vote, and the three Baltic diplomatic missions here are still recognized as the representatives of their countries.

Kajeckas, of the Lithuanians, to back up his thesis that the Russian supervised elections of 1940 were fraudulent, relates that in the last free Lithuanian elections there were only 1,500 communists in a population of 3,000,000.

U. S. Writers Fail to Equal Quality of Last Generation

By W. G. ROGERS, AP Arts Reporter

NEW YORK—American writers of this generation must get busy if they expect to do as well by us as their fathers did a generation ago.

Within three years after World War I, two books had been published in this country which now seem destined to a permanent place in American letters: Sinclair Lewis' "Main Street" and Sherwood Anderson's "Winesburg, Ohio."

Can we pick out two books written in the last three years since VE day, 1945, and claim as much for them? No, not with any certainty.

Of course there is the constant tendency to look back to the past with longing. There used to be great painters, we sigh nostalgically, and great singers, and great writers. Now, we complain, there are only would-be's, and pot-boilers.

Aside from Hersey's "A Bell For Adano," written during the war, there is only one outstanding postwar book about the war: Burns' "The Gallery."

Lasting fiction inspired by the war probably won't appear until later. "What Price Glory" reached our stage in 1924. The best-remembered fiction came along about the 11th Armistice day; 1929 was the year of Hemingway's "Farewell to Arms" and Remarque's "All Quiet On The Western Front."

North-Central Area Needs Planting Shift

By LAWRENCE N. ELDRED

CHICAGO—(AP)—Nearly fifty million acres of farmland in eight north central states, including Ohio, need a shift in use, a new soil study indicates. Expected results would be vast increases in grain yields, beef and dairy cattle production, and soil saving.

George H. Walter, of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Milwaukee, Wis., considered land resources of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and Missouri. This is the upper Mississippi region of the U. S. Soil Conservation service, which cooperated in the study.

The economist said, "two-thirds of the pork and more than one-third of the beef and other meats produced in the United States come from these eight states, as well as about two-thirds of the corn, a fifth of the wheat, and about 90 per cent of the soybeans.

"Of the total of 215,600,000 acres in farms in the eight states, about 60 per cent is suitable for continuous use as cropland. By areas, however, the proportion varies from less than 30 per cent in parts of the (Northern) cutover areas and the Ozarks Missouri) to more than 70 per cent on most of the flat prairies of the corn belt."

The figures were based on the prewar period, compared with which, an SCS official said, there is "no significant change" today. During the war, however, there was a large bulge in the amount of land in field crops.

Walter sought to find the "highest and best use" of all land in the eight states.

WOULD TRANSFER LAND

To achieve this, he said, there would be a transfer of some 24,600,000 acres of present permanent pasture and idle land into crops. On the other hand, there would be a shift of nearly 24,500,000 acres out of current crop use because the soil is too poor or erodes too easily. This land would go into pasture, forest, recreational, or wildlife uses.

While the net increase of cropland would be only about 100,000 acres, the new areas "usually would be more productive than that shifted out of this use," Walter said.

Dollars and cents estimates of the improvement could not be made, but if the land-shift were made and combined with soil conservation practices and moderate quantities of fertilizer, Walter declared the results would look like this:

Yields of grain crops could be increased about 30 per cent. Yields of roughage (pasture and hay) could be expected to double. This would mean livestock production—mostly beef and dairy cattle—could be increased at least 40 per cent and poultry numbers might be expected to increase beyond prewar levels.

"To avoid making too great an increase in meat, hog production would need to fall to about the 1937-41 levels," Walter's analysis said.

ACREAGE INCREASE

In the shift, land available for permanent pasture would be increased from 42,100,000 to 16,500,000 acres through the addition of now idle land and land unsuited to crops.

"All types of livestock would have available a greater proportion of roughage in their rations," Walter noted. "With such changes in livestock types, numbers and rations, these states would continue to have large quantities of feed grains for shipment to other areas."

Cropland would total about 180,800,000 acres in the eight states after the changeover, compared with 130,700,000 acres in 1939. The 30 per cent grain yield increase would come despite a decrease of six per cent in the acreage of row crops and a 16 per cent decrease in the acreage of small grains. There would be a 28 per cent increase in hay and pasture acreage.

"Grain production would be concentrated even more than at present on the highly productive soils that are subject to little or no erosion," the economist said. "Farms on the poorer and more erodible soils would reduce their acreage of grain crops even though many of them are now deficient in grain for feed.

"Every farmer has a choice of alternative conservation systems of farming, any one of which is designed to control the erosion and fertility problem on his farm. His choice depends on his type of farming and the relative prices for the crops he can raise."

Galionite Gets Play Lead

Girl Plans Drama Career

GALION—Her interest in high school dramatics has led Miss Patti Thompson, Galion high school senior, to choose the teaching of dramatics as a career. She plans to major in this subject when she enrolls at Ohio State university next fall.

Miss Thompson at present is rehearsing the role of Lizzie Borden, lead in the play, "Nine Pine Street," which will be given May 11 by the senior class in Galion high school auditorium.

Under Mrs. Loren E. Beck, Galion dramatist, Miss Thompson studied expression. She has appeared on many programs in school and club circles of the city. The last few years she has been studying under Miss Miriam Sayre, high school dramatic teacher.

As a member of the high school speech class, Miss Thompson has had parts in several one-act plays which have been produced in Galion and surrounding towns.

Last winter she was winner for both city and Crawford county Prince of Peace declamatory contest. In her junior year she had a part in the junior class play, "Spring Green."

The plot for the senior class play, which is a three-act drama written by John Colton and Carlton Miles, is based upon the true story of the Lizzie Borden murder case in Fall River, Mass., and is a heavy drama for high school students to attempt. After tryouts were held for the production, Miss Thompson was chosen to portray the character of Lizzie Borden.

Besides dramatics, Miss Thompson likes athletics, and this year was chosen president of the Girls' Athletic association of Galion high school. She also likes music and plays a clarinet in the high school band and orchestra. She is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Thompson of West Payne avenue.

Amusement Tax Passed By Council

To Take 3 Per Cent Of All Admissions

LOUDONVILLE — City council has passed a three per cent gross admissions tax to be effective on all amusements that take place within the village.

The new tax will enable the village to collect the funds which were taken by the state until the state tax expired last fall.

The bill also provides for a one dollar registration fee for pin ball machines and juke boxes, a $20 tax on each pin ball machine and a $15 tax on each juke box.

Salary of the caretaker of Riverside park was raised five dollars a week after council reconsidered a bill that had been defeated at the last meeting.

Three ordinances were passed enabling the village to proceed with improvements at Riverside park. The Jaycees have offered to furnish labor to lay tiles.

A committee was appointed to investigate drainage on North Spring street and Mill road after L. E. BeBout of the Milling company explained that flood waters were threatened wheat storage tanks.

Perrysville Passes Levy

ASHLAND — Official count of the ballots in the Ashland county primary reveals passage of a four-mill levy by Perrysville school district by a 76 per cent vote.

The district includes Monroe township in Richland county and the Ashland county election board has received a report from the Richland county board giving the Monroe township vote. The total vote was 198 to 34 in favor of the levy.

Millersburg Will Clean Up

MILLERSBURG — Millersburg council will sponsor a "clean up campaign" for Millersburg.

Mayor Bert Bower set the week of May 17 for the time. Rubbish will be hauled from the south part of town May 17 and 18 and from the north side of the town on the 19th and 20th. Rubbish must be left in containers at the curb.

Council passed an emergency ordinance resolution to give the state highway department authority to clean and paint the overhead bridge on Route 39 over the railroad and also a bridge on Route 62 on South Washington street.

Council passed a motion to install a street light on the south end of School street. Rambacher, Horn and Metzler, the street committee, were directed to contact L. R. Given of the Ohio Power company regarding the installing of same.

Mayor Bower reported $76.70 collected in fines and costs. Bills totaling $839.53 were allowed.

Purse Lost 30 Years Ago Returned to Ashland Woman

ASHLAND—Mrs. Emma Wharton of Ashland R. D. 1, has just been reimbursed by the finder of a purse which she lost from her car 30 years ago in Delaware.

The finder, a Delaware man, kept the discovery a secret all through the intervening years until a religious conversion led him to seek the owner of the purse.

A letter addressed to "Mrs. Emma Wharton or any of her close relatives" asked "Who lost a lady's purse in Delaware about 30 years ago? Would you please write me?"

Mrs. Wharton pondered awhile, then remembered she had lost a purse from her car when the door flew open while she was visiting a son, Howard, a student at Ohio Wesleyan university, 30 years ago. An ad in a Delaware paper had brought no results. The purse contained board money paid her by roomers and a watch, gift from her late husband.

In reply to her answer, the man wrote he was a young man at the time and found [illegible] in the dirt of a Delaware street. He said he watched for an ad but never saw one. He said he had lost the watch about four years later. "Now Jesus has saved me and I want to make amends," he wrote.

In return for an estimate of the value of the purse and its contents, the finder sent Mrs. Wharton a check for the amount. She has sent him a suitable reward but is still wondering how he knew she lived in Ashland since there was no address in the purse, only her name inside the watch.

Special recognition will be given to the Golden Anniversary class of 1948. The first graduating class of Iberia high school was honored in 1898. Graduates included Mrs. Clele Smith Rusk, Jamie Williamson and Dr. Homer B. Henderson.

Their program will be presented at the 9 a.m. assembly and the choir will be guests of Massillon students for luncheon.

Mansfielders Tell Why Campaigns Fail

Fund-raising campaigns in Mansfield have shown a tendency in recent months to prove unsuccessful.

This week's forum question asked Mansfielders why they thought the various campaigns had failed to achieve their financial goals.

Most of those questioned blamed it on poor salesmenship on the part of the campaigners, others said that with living costs astronomically high and still going up, they just couldn't afford to give even though they wanted to do so.

★

Dominic Fillutzy, 167 East Third street: "I think the drives would be more successful if they used a little more salesmanship in connection with them. If you get to where the people are, they'll give the money. At the factory where I work, we always meet our quota and usually pass it."

Fillutzy

★

Mrs. Howard Shoup, 518 Burns street: "Frankly, money is just too short. Married people with children are finding it hard to keep out of debt as it is. Food prices are so high and they just keep going up, and now it takes every cent earned to buy just necessities."

Mrs. Shoup

★

Lee Gallant, Mansfield: "Well, I can tell you, for example, that I haven't yet been contacted personnally on the cancer drive. Of course at the shop we have been asked for our donations and have given them. Another thing. With all the talk of layoffs, people are holding onto their money."

Gallant

Mrs. Robert Hollis, 151 West Third street: "I think people are just saving their money when they can, with all this talk of lay-offs in prospect. It's not a question of not wanting to give, it's just that it's hard when you don't have it. If prices go down, the drives will be more successful."

Mrs. Hollis

★

Sam Williams, 182 Harker street: "I think the trouble is too many drives in too rapid succession. I work in a factory and it's part of my job to go around asking the men for various donations. With so many drives the men are inclined to hesitancy in giving. I think a fuller explanation of just where the money goes would help."

Williams

★

Jack Mercer, 155 Buckingham street: "I think that a lot of people who could give a little think it isn't enough and so they don't give at all. I think that one of the reasons locally is that there are many out-of-towners working in Mansfield who prefer not to give here but in their own towns. That cuts down the receipts."

Compiles Data for Rate Change

BeVier Makes Study Of Water Fund Needs

By SHELON BINN

Sanitary Engineer B. V. BeVier has started to assemble data to be used in readjusting city water rates.

When the water rates were raised from 50 to 80 percent in March, city officials said the increases were temporary, pending a more thorough study of the water consumption habits of Mansfielders.

As the first step toward re-adjustment, BeVier is analyzing some 26,000 separate water bills. From this study, he will prepare charts, graphs and tables that will be used in determining the new rate.

Any logically planned rate increase must be based on a careful consumer analysis which shows, among other things, how many persons use given quantities of water. In other words, BeVier must know how many persons consume 1,500 cubic feet, how many use 2,000 and so on up the line.

This information is correlated with costs analyses and balanced against income needed to maintain the water system, allow for depreciation and service the outstanding bonds. It is then used to determine an equitable rate increase.

The recent rate increase was made without this study because money was needed to complete the Clear Fork waterworks project and a loan was the only feasible way of obtaining the money.

Statistics were not available for a scientifically based rate increase, so a temporary scheme was worked out, with the object of carrying on a thorough study and then re-adjusting the rates.

Teen Talk—

Gossip From M. H. S.

By ANN SCHOENMAN

SOME very surprising changes have taken place at MHS. Just ask any student that has tried to skip lately and they will explain some of the rules that are suddenly being enforced very strictly.

Colleen Messmore is wondering how a certain group of boys got hold of a picture of her and Jimmy Bechtler to put in the second floor show case. . . . Seen in the hall playing chess were Jim Melchert and John Kern. They really had a cute set, too. Quite an audience was gathered around when I arrived on the scene. . . . Bobby Richards, Bob Leppert, and Eldon Roberts can tell you if the water is warm or cold on an early spring day. They went canoeing and fell in!!! . . .

* * *

Marilyn Massa has had her tresses cut. It is real sharp, too. . . . RoAnne Farry is quite proud of the fact that she is now at the ripe old age of sixteen. Her birthday was last Tuesday. Happy birthday, Ro Anne! . . . Hey, you senior boys, what's the matter? Do you realize that the prom is only nineteen days away and there are quite a few senior girls wandering the halls without a date? Going to let them stay at home that night? . . .

* * *

The latest plans for "kids' day" is wearing striped suits. They say it will match the new rules enforced. . . . I just noticed that Paige Pete has had her hair cut, too. It seems that the scissors are now a girl's best friend. . . . Some of the second year typing students have quite a worry on their shoulders. They just can't seem to make that far away mark of fifty words a minute required for passing.

* * *

Question of the week is: "Do we wear formals to the Shaw's dance or the "New Look?" . . . There have been many plans made for the day after the prom. Mostly they center around the highways heading for the big cities of Cleveland or Cincinnati. . . . Here's hoping they don't decide to venture on to Kentucky. . . . Rumor has it that Carl Letizia and Elsie Kinkel will be seen together at the prom. . . .

* * *

The choir presented a very interesting program on Monday It was their last of the year. They had a very unique way of introducing their numbers. Tell me, how long did it take you to learn to talk in unison? . . . The seniors are to start practicing how to march for class day and commencement in the very near future. . . .

* * *

Well, kids, with this week gone it leaves but nine days for the seniors. Many will be going to college but for some it means the last nine days of their school life.

Mansfield Housewives Give Tips On New Modern Conveniences

By DOROTHY MONROE

THE DAYS of Old Mother Hubbard and her barren cupboard are gone forever.

At least they are for the homemaker who has a home freezer in her house. In 1948, surprise company can drop in on this homemaker an hour before dinnertime and she can come up with a banquet fit for a king and in the time it takes to thaw out a well-balanced menu!

"Dinner in a jiffy" is the new motto of this homemaker and three Mansfield women told us this week why it is that they are never caught with their food supplies down.

Mrs Leland Hawkins, who has just moved with her family to the attractive rustic log cabin they built on Fleming Falls road, has had her home freezer since February, 1947. She listed the variety of foods she has stored and it is no wonder that she has time to help around the Hawkins farm, assist in the work in and around the family's new home and still serve a wonderful meal at the drop of a group of visitors.

Here are just a few of the things Mrs. Hawkins has stored away; all kinds of berries, rhubarb, peaches, applies, cherries, all types of home grown vegetables (except the salad varieties which can't be frozen) beer, veal, pork, venison, fowl (already stuffed and baked), fish, hams, bacon, ice cream, home made butter, pies, cakes, cookies and rolls.

"One day while I was stretching curtains," said Mrs. Hawkins, "why husband's brother and his wife dropped in unexpectedly Naturally we wanted them to stay to dinner I wasn't a bit worried because the whole meal was in the freezer and it was ready to serve in one hour."

The introduction of a freezer unit, practical for home use, obviously makes possible hospitality that used to appear only on the farm — no hurrying around to grocery or delicatessen at the last minute. Shopping is done days, weeks or even months in advance.

Since Mrs. Hawkins has lunch boxes to pack she keeps sandwiches spread in her freezer and often makes up several kinds of sandwiches at a time so that she can pack them frozen in the boxes. By lunch time they are thawed and ready to eat.

The family butchers meat from the farm and Mr. Hawkins brings home fish every time he is in the lake region This meat is frozen and stored along with venison, shot in Canada, during the vacation season. With other wild game bagged locally this selection provides a variety of meat which lasts the family from one season until the next.

Although baked food may be completely prepared before it is frozen Mrs. Hawkins prefers to bake her rolls, cakes, pies and cookies just before she serves them so she wraps the raw products in airtight packages and stores them until they are needed. She lets them thaw half an hour before she bakes them. She prepares several pies at a time and if she needs to go down town during the afternoon she comes home to a pie all ready to pop in the oven.

Mrs. O. A. Yoha, South Main street road, has some favorable testimonies for the home freezer too. Her kitchen, as we entered her home, was just about as good a recommendation as one could ask. It was as spic and span as though no-one had been in it all day. But when she escorted us to the cellar where the home freezer is she explained, "I didn't realize it was time for you to come. I've just finished packing my rhubarb for the freezer."

This was quite a surprise, as there were no tell-tale traces of recent activity in the kitchen —as there would be, of course, had her storage system involved the tedious processes of canning.

The rhubarb was neatly packed into the 15 cubic foot freezer (which the Yohas have had for six months) and was cataloged along with the rest of the food to make it more convenient to find just the package desired when Mrs. Yoha wants it.

The Yohas are just back from Florida and will leave for Canada May 23. They plan to bring back "the limit" of fish which they will freeze. In the fall they will add a new supply of venison to that which they froze last year.

As we came upstairs Mrs. Yoha couldn't find enough phrases of appreciation for her home freezer. "Why, one time I was to entertain with a tea during one of my busy weeks," she recalled, "so I baked my tea cookies Wednesday Friday I simply thawed them and served them and no-one could tell they had been baked two days."

Another Mansfielder who has nothing but good words for her home freezer is Mrs. Clarence Lisle, Blymyer avenue. The unit was installed in her home in November last year and she has put it to excellent use ever since. One way is by baking five loaves of home made bread at one time. She and Mr. Lisle eat one loaf and freeze the other four. When they want a fresh loaf of bread all they have to do is allow enough time for thawing and they have bread with a real oven-fresh aroma and flavor.

Another thing Mrs. Lisle likes about her freezer is that her refrigerator is no longer overcrowded. Her meat for the week, vegetables and even left overs can be placed in the freezer until they are needed. She also keeps ice cream in the freezer. "It stays solid there," she explains.

"I could get several entire meals, including the baked goods, from my freezer," says Mrs. Lisle, "and never have to go to the grocery except for salad vegetables."

Last summer the Lisles gathered 50 quarts of blackberries and froze a good portion of them. They are still enjoying the fresh flavor and firmness of those berries. When thawed they are the same as they were when taken from the bushes — and there was no fuss, no mess and no weary bones from rushing around to get them canned before they spoiled.

"I used to can the green beans and corn we grew in our garden," Mrs. Lisle said, "but this year I'm going to freeze them because they're so much better and taste so much more natural. I think I'll add some broccoli to the food I store from our garden this year too."

It appears that the women who own home freezers wouldn't trade them for anything. At a temperature below zero, practically any food you can name can be stored for months at a time, thawed and served in as appetizing a way as though it were fresh out of the grocery or garden. Sounds all right, doesn't it?

The Epsilon Tau chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority have been making drapes and furnishings for the girls' living room of the Children's Home. In the picture from left to right Mrs. Theo Brown, 411 South Main street, Mrs. Steve Grasel, 16 Raleigh, and Mrs. William Knarr, 32 Clifton avenue, are putting up some of the completed drapes. The organization has also purchased a mirror, lamp and radio for this room. They chose this for their summer project.

As soon as she returned home from her vacation in Florida Mrs. O. A. Yoha prepared and packaged a supply of rhubarb to be used for some juicy pies next winter. She is pictured above depositing the packages in her 15 cubic foot home freezer.

* * *

Mrs. Leland Hawkins demonstrates the practical use of an ordinary flatiron for sealing the wrappings on food to be frozen. She is pictured above preparing a freshly baked cake for freezing. C. A. "Bud" Hoover, Ohio Public Service dealer contact man, nods his approval of the flatiron method of sealing.

* * *

Fresh home-baked bread is just one of the luxuries Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lisle enjoy since they installed their home freezer. Mrs. Lisle bakes several loaves at a time and freezes them for "future reference." She is pictured above as she unwraps a loaf to let it thaw for dinner.

Astowela Garden Members Given Varied Program At Meeting

TWENTY-FIVE members of the Astowela Garden club met Friday at the home of Mrs. W. J. Acomb, Edgewood road, with Mrs. J. H. Finefrock as associate hostess. Miss Grace Wolcott and Mrs. H. S. Jones presided at the luncheon table which was centered with red tulips. Lilac arrangements were throughout the rooms.

ONE WORD

by Evan B. Johnson

There is one word that cannot be defined
Save in the memories it brings to mind;
When we were cold or hungry or afraid
We called but this one word to summon aid;
When skies were overcast, how well we knew
The magic word that made the heavens blue;
When troubles came that seemed too much to bear,
Our trembling lips would use it as a prayer;
Above the tumult of the world it's heard;
Strong men, like helpless babes, cry out the word;
Defining it but tells the smallest part
Of what it means down deep in every heart;
There can never, ever be another
Word so sweet and comforting as MOTHER.

SCHOOL BEHIND BARS—There's more to the Mansfield reformatory than stone walls and cell blocks. The photographs above show a few of the many types of vocational training under way at OSR. Upper left, two inmates are shown operating a modern, complicated Kelly press, used to print booklets, business forms and other printed matter. Lower left is one of the classrooms where illiterate or partially-schooled youths are taught up to the sixth grade. Howard Swank, a certified teacher, is the instructor. At top center, a machinist-inmate is shown operating a heavy drill press in the machine shop, which handles nearly all maintenance work at the reformatory, as well as produce equipment for other state institutions. At top right, two youths operate sewing machines in the tailor shop as a third does finishing work on a pair of trousers. At bottom right, G. M. Garn, band director (back to camera), leads a reformatory band in a practice session in the institution's auditorium.—(Photos by Bill Graham)

Controversy Stirs Church

Groups In England Debate Hot Issue

LONDON—(AP) The Church of England assembly is about to come to grips with the question of whether it needs a professional press agent to combat "public apathy" toward religion.

"Yes," says a special commission on publicity. Dr. J. C. Wand, Bishop of London and a commission member, told the assembly:

"All we are asking you is to get out of crinolines into the 'new look.' You cannot fight modern wars with bows and arrows and in the modern setup you must use modern methods."

"No," say the stand-patters. Press agentry is "vulgar." The Very Rev. A. S. Duncan-Jones, dean of Chichester, argued that hiring a "super-publicity person" would not increase publication of church news anyway.

The assembly will act on the commission's report at its June meeting. In the background of the discussion is the fact that only a small percentage of the English belong to any religious organization, Protestant or Catholic.

The special commission was appointed by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York in 1943. Its recommendations came out in 1945, but the report based on them has just been formally "received" by the assembly.

UTILIZE PUBLICITY

The report said it par-

"We believe evangelism by advertising may prove of incalculable value in the preliminary stage of preparing the soil for the reception of the seed . . . and can bring into touch with the church untold thousands now thirsting for spiritual strength and peace at heart.

"The commission believes that the church must in principle be prepared to utilize all reasonable and generally recognized means of publicity. The meaning of the Christian faith in a secular world . . . must be rediscovered and restated.

The report calls for the establishment of "the church information board" and placing it's direction under "a newly appointed officer, thoroughly skilled and competent."

Compensation Suit Dismissed

A petition filed by Mrs. Cecil Cellars, 37 Glenwood boulevard, for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation act and for compensation from the State Insurance fund, has been dismissed in common pleas court.

The court found that her husband, Robert W. Cellars, did not die of injuries received as a result of his employment at the Barnes Manufacturing company. The court also found that the application for compensation was properly disallowed by the Industrial Commission of Ohio, the defendant.

Attorneys for Mrs. Cellars were John C. O'Donnell and C. H. Herkel. The commission was represented by R. Brooke Alloway, assistant attorney general.

FRATERNAL WEEK

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Governor Thomas J. Herbert named the week of May 9-15 "Fraternal Week in Ohio" yesterday. The week will honor fraternal lodges and other such organizations.

Inmates Taught to Earn Living Without Gun

Vocational Training at OSR Defeats Crime

By NORMAN DRESSER, N-J Sunday Editor

Inmates of the Ohio State reformatory are being taught how to earn a living without a gun—and the vocational training program pays dividends both to the inmate and the taxpayer.

The vocational training has a three-fold purpose: To give the inmate an opportunity to make an honest living; to make the reformatory as self-sustaining as possible, and to prevent idleness among the inmates.

In all, more than 30 trades currently are being taught at the Mansfield institution. They range from auto repairing to truck farming and include such highly-skilled vocations as precision machine shop work and steam engineering.

'Our primary purpose is to teach the boys how to make a living," George Allarding, assistant superintendent, said. "But if we can't do anything else, we teach 'em how to read and write."

"You'd be surprised how many of the boys can't read and write—and how proud many of them are after they have learned. The IQ's of some are so low that we can't teach them, but most of the illiterate inmates can learn."

The school, which operates the year 'round, is divided into six sections, roughly corresponding to grades one to six in a public school. Subjects are similar to those taught in any school and most instructors are certified teachers.

NO IDLENESS AT OSR

There's no idleness at OSR. All of the 2,000-odd inmates are engaged in some type of training or work from 8 a. m. until 4 p. m. Inmates are encouraged, but not forced, to take some sort of vocational training. If an inmate refuses to take training, he is put at hard labor, such as unloading coal.

"It's surprising how many of the boys have no training whatsoever," Allerding said. "Many cards list the inmate as just a plain laborer. But if they're interested in training, it's here if you want to learn."

Allarding is in general charge of operations at OSR under the direction of the superintendent, Arthur L. Glatike. A jovial, heavy-set man, Allarding laughs frequently and appears to have the respect of both OSR guards and inmates.

Operating the reformatory is in some respects like running several different factories. Within the high walls of OSR are a power plant, a shoe factory, a clothing factory, a furniture mill, a printing shop and a number of other establishments. Outside the walls is the huge farm.

Typical of the vocational training program is that given in the machine shop. At present there are 56 inmates working in the shop under the guidance of a trained machinist. The inmates have varying degrees of experience, ranging from green apprentices to experienced machinists.

The shop, which is equipped with the most modern machinery, takes care of most of the maintenance work at OSR. In addition it produces hospital beds for state institutions. With heavy drill presses and lathes in operation, the shop looks and sounds like any similar establishment on the outside."

The classrooms, too, appear similar to any public school room, except that the pupils are grown young men. One of the most popular subjects for inmates with schooling is typing and shorthand.

Many inmates become proficient typists and are employed in the institution's offices as clerical help. Another popular subject is bookkeeping.

For recreational periods and marching the reformatory has a well-trained band of more than 40 members. Trained and directed by G. M. Garn, the band practices daily and furnishes lively marches for drill and popular music for concerts.

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy—and an inmate antagonistic and defiant. In the yard, a large, flat area behind the cell blocks, you'll find the boys playing ball on sunny afternoons. A guard watches them, but he doesn't appear to be guarding them. To all appearances, it's a group of men playing a spirited game of baseball.

The vocational training system is based on the idea that inmates turn to crime because they lack proper training to make an honest living.

"This place is an open book," Allarding said. "There's no secret process—it's plain logic that if you teach a man how to make an honest living, he's less likely to turn to crime, which certainly doesn't pay."

"Of course, you can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink. If the boys don't want to learn, we can't force them. But for most of 'em, vocational training is a godsend and they learn willingly and avidly."

Does the system pay off?

"Well, I don't believe in quoting a bunch of statistics—they don't mean much," he replied. "But I can give you some examples which are illuminating."

'One fellow I knew pretty well did a four-year stretch here just a few years ago. Today he's a successful electrical engineer in Cincinnati. We gave him training here. Now that training is paying off both to himself and the taxpayer. He's making an honest living and Ohio has an added asset.

"Then there's another former inmate who now is a salesman with a wholesale grocery in Chicago. A former auto thief now has his own car and a good income. He made good with a bang."

Allarding could cite hundreds of similar cases. There are, of course, others who return to a life of crime but, as Allarding said, "you always hear about the bad ones and seldom about the boys who make good."

The inmates at OSR serve their terms to pay a debt to society. The vocational training program is society's effort to pay its debt to the inmate. Youths frequently turn to crime because they lack the training to earn an honest living.

Teasures—and Junk—on Sale At Evelyn M'Lean's Mansion

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON—(AP)—One of the world's strangest sales started Saturday.

Auctioneers bustled into the cluttered rooms of "Friendship," the hilltop home of the late Evalyn Walsh McLean. In the next week they will sell a lot of treasures—and a lot of rubbish—for an estimated $250,000.

Society writers, sobbing softly into their demitasses, say this means the end of a era. And I guess they're right at that.

For Mrs. McLean, who died a year ago, owned such things as the fabulous Hope diamond, a 44-carat affair, and a museum full of knicknacks.

Where will you ever again find another Evalyn Walsh McLean? Evalyn Walsh, born in a log cabin, so poor she yearned for a slate with red trimming.

Evalyn Walsh McLean, giver of great parties, so rich that one party, for her son Jock when he reached 21, cost her $50,000.

Tom Walsh found gold. Or, as Mrs. McLean put it in her autobiography, "Father struck it rich." And she married Edward Beale McLean, heir to the Washington Post and the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Like many a buyer, Mrs. McLean apparently bought and bought, but rarely sold. From out of attics and basements have come a helter-skelter of articles to be heaped indiscriminately throughout the house.

Here are priceless tapestries—and furniture which obviously would make an old folks' home for indigent moths.

Here is the room with its famed animal collection, made of China, crystal, porcelain and, apparently, plain plaster of Paris. Cats, dogs, birds, elephants, roosters, giraffes, monkeys, zebras.

Crowded room follows crowded room, each crammed with lovely paintings, fragile antiques and dismal junk.

And there, in a corner of a bedroom, is the ornate cradle. The King of the Belgians sent that, a gift for Vinson, the first born.

And now, everything is going, except the jewel collection.

New Finds In Vitamins

Science Uncovering Chemistry Secrets

AMES, Iowa—(AP)—Scientists are beginning to lift the curtain of secrecy on exactly what happens to the vitamins you eat and what they do.

The new knowledge is important to health, and may aid in understanding such diseases as rheumatic fever and high blood pressure. It shows that some diseases and even changes in food habits can increase your need for certain vitamins.

The facts are hard to get because human chemistry is so involved. But clues and discoveries from many laboratories are helping to map the vitamin trails through this jungle of human chemistry.

One important clue, said Dr. Robert R. Sealock, Iowa State college biochemist, came from Europe in studies in Addison's disease. This is a chronic weakening disease, usually fatal, and in it the skin turns a coppery bronze color. The European investigators found that doses of vitamin C cleared up this discoloration. It didn't improve the other symptoms of the disease.

The copper color was due to melanin, a skin pigment which when present in smaller quantities is the sun tan pigment. The disease victims had too much melanin.

Dr. Sealock, then at the University of Rochester, and co-workers found the reason why. The melanin was formed because one important chemical wasn't being used properly. This chemical was an amino acid, tyrosine. It's one of more than 20 amino acids from which all proteins are made.

Lack of Vitamin C, they showed, broke the chain of steps in the body's proper use of the tyrosine. One of the broken links formed a substance that produced the melanin.

A practical use for this finding was discovered by Dr. S. Z. Levine of Cornell university medical center. Premature babies, fed on cows' milk, developed symptoms of scurvy. The cows' milk has more of the tyrosine than mother's milk. The larger amounts of the tyrosine meant more vitamin C was needed than the babies received in their diet. Dr. Levine gave the premature babies more vitamin C, and they then could take the cows' milk without the threat of scurvy.

Southpaw Gives Up Three Hits

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Gene Bearden, rookie left-hander, made his Major league debut an auspicious one here yesterday, limiting the Washington Senators to three hits as Cleveland captured a 6-1 victory.

Larry Roby, Negro outfielder, belted the second longest home run in Griffith stadium history off Sid Hudson with two aboard in the ninth inning. It was a 450-foot drive which hit the loud speakers atop the center field fence.

Doby's drive was the most powerful smack hit here since Babe Ruth sent the ball over the center field wall in 1922. The home run climaxed a five run outburst off Sid Hudson.

NEEDS RELIEF

Bearden required relief from Russ Christopher with two out in the ninth. The 27-year-old former Oakland hurler didn't yield a base on balls until the ninth, when he forced across a run by walking Eddie Yost, Al Kozar, Mickey Vernon and Tom McBride.

Cleveland grasped a 1-0 lead off Hudson in the first inning on singles by Thurman Tucker, Lou Boudreau and Dale Mitchell and held it until the ninth.

With one out in the eighth, Joe Gordon tripled and scored on Ken Keltner's deep drive to center. Jim Hegan doubled and scored on Bearden's single. Tucker also singled before Doby blasted his mighty homer.

Bearden's three-hitter was a personal triumph. Five years ago his right knee was badly crushed and his skull fractured in naval action in the South Pacific. He was told by doctors that he would never pitch again.

The purple heart veteran wears an aluminum plate and screw in his knee and also an aluminum plate in the back of his head.

Bearden has long kept his injuries a secret "because they might get the idea that I'm not strong enough to pitch," but there was little doubt after his first major league start that he is capable of throwing his deceptive knuckleball for the Indians for years to come.

YANKS TRADE HIM

The Californian was the property of the New York Yankees until 1947, when he was traded to the Indians along with Al Gettel and Hal Peck for Ray Mack and Sherman Lollar. He had won 15 and lost 4 for Oakland of the Pacific Coast league before the transaction.

"The Yankees must have found out about my leg and traded me because of that," he said. "We had to take physical examinations for the club and the doctor discovered that I had a plate and screw in my knee.

"I don't know whether they told Bill Veeck about it or not when they traded me. For all I know neither Veeck nor Manager Lou Boudreau know about it, and I hope they're not mad when they find out. I've been treated pretty swell by Veeck and all the rest and I don't want to do anything to get them down on me."

Junior Loops To Begin Play About June 14

Junior baseball league sponsored by the Mansfield Hot Stove league will tentatively begin operation the second week in June.

The Hot Stovers will have three Mansfield and one county league playing baseball. Teams will carry rosters of at least 14 players with managers being able to add lads from their own wards anytime during the campaign.

A limit of $10 a uniform has been set by the baseball committee of the sport booster organization. Several of the backers will begin ordering uniforms within the next ten days. The Elks club has already turned over a check to Stan Kamen, recreation director, to cover the cost of outfitting one of the clubs.

Meetings of all teams and players will be held sometime during the week of May 17. Announcement of the meetings will be made in the sport pages of the News-Journal.

Senior high school students will be able to sign for participation starting tomorrow in the school office, Harry Mehock said last night. Mehock, public school physical education director, is helping the baseball committee set up the leagues.

More thna 300 youngsters have already signed at John Simpson, Johnny Appleseed, Madison, St. Peter's and Roseland schools.

Senior High Sport Program Is Rated Among Ohio's Best

By Fred Tharp
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

A LOOK at last Thursday's spring sports program convinces us that Mansfield is well on the road to having one of Ohio's truly great all-around sport programs. . . . The varsity golf, baseball and tennis teams, the reserve baseball clubs were all in action Thursday with the varsity track team serving as officials in the annual grade school cinder meet. . . . Add the intra-mural programs for boys and girls in the grade, junior high and senior high planes and you find a complete program. . . . Only two things could possibly throw a monkey wrench into the programs. . . . One is lack of facilities and the other is over-emphasis of any one endeavor. . . . Athletic Director Augie Morningstar wants to add swimming to the roster next winter. . . . Of course, many of the meets would have to be on the road as Mansfield does not have an adequate indoor pool. . . . Morningstar dropped reserve football last fall but wants to return it to the program for the 1948 season. . . . Senior high has plenty of coaches now but finances may be on the light side. . . . The competitive program for boys now includes track, baseball, golf, tennis, football, basketball, indoor track and boxing. . . . Addition of swimming and wrestling would do things up "brown." . . . Mansfield was one of the pioneers in a grade school athletic program. . . . The Senior high officials have to delve into all phases of athletics to keep the interest going.

MORE LADS could participate in the Tyger sport program if junior varsity teams in basketball and track were added. . . . We have discussed the two phases at different times with members of the Tyger athletic staff. . . . The JV cage team would augment the varsity and soph squads. It could play area Class B schools, possibly taking over the Tyger gym for home games when the varsity travels. . . . Combining with one of the junior highs for double-headers would make good programs. . . . The JV track team could also go against area schools. . . . An interesting documentary film on Senior high's sports program is being completed. . . . It is expected to be ready for showing in the late summer or early fall . . . The film will catalogue all athletic endeavors at the Tyger institution.

CUFF STUFF: The Richland county schools are missing a bet if they don't enter the district Class B track meet at Mansfield's Stadium field Saturday. . . . Only Lucas has entered so far. . . . The Richland countians should place in the meet. . . . Russ Murphy, the former Senior high grid and cage mentor, was in Mansfield between the Cleveland Browns and Ohio State football clinics. . . . He's now an assistant mentor at North Carolina. . . . Dutch Leonard, the veteran knuckle baller, rooms with 18-year-old rookie Curt Simmons when the Phillies are on the road. . . . Dutch, 38, doesn't mind about being kidded because he's old enough to be Curt's father . . . But he has something to say about Simmons, "He's a fine roomie but I wish he'd stop trying to get me to go roller skating with him." . . . Mansfield's Gene Ropp is batting .250 for the Ohio U. baseball team . . . Citation has run on seven different tracks and has won at least once over each. . . . He's had three different jockeys and right now is 14th among the turf's leading money winners. . . . If he takes the Preakness and Belmont he'll be among the top five. . . . The Calumet Comet has won 15 of 17 races with a take of $331,830. . . . Harry "The Hat" Walker of the Phils wears out 20 baseball caps each season with his habit of tugging at the peak.

New York Scuttles Pirates To Take Loop Leadership

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— The New York Giants pushed past Pittsburgh into first place in the National league yesterday when they pounded five Pirate hurlers for 15 hits and a 12-5 victory.

A crowd of 11,535 spectators had hardly settled in their seats when the Giants exploded for five runs on six hits at the expense of Lefty Vic Lombardi, an old nemesis when he pitched for Brooklyn. With Kirby Higbe, another ex-Dodger on the mound, the Giants added three more runs in the second on home runs by Billy Rigney and Bobby Thomson and doubles by Johnny Mize and Buddy Kerr.

New York Righthander Larry Jansen, after three scoreless innings, was tagged by Wally Westlake for a home run in the fourth inning. The Pirates added another in the fifth and drove Jansen from the mound in the sixth with a four hit attack that produced three runs and moved them up to within an 8-5 deficit.

The Giants sewed the game up in the seventh, combining four hits and two Pirate errors to tally four times and take a seven-run bulge. Kenny Trinkle, relief artist, held the Bucs at bay in the last three frames.

Stove Softballers Go Against Clevelanders

Tappan Stove's second shift softball team will engage in its first home game of the season this afternoon when the Cleveland Frank's Cafe team invades Tappan field at 2:30.

The two teams played in Cleveland last Sunday, with the Mansfield team coming out on the short end of a 8-to 7 count.

Ram Coaching Situation Is Still Mystery

Just who will be named to fill the coaching vacancies at Madison high school was as much a mystery as ever today.

With the Madison board of education scheduled to meet Tuesday it is inevitable that something will be done soon, however Superintendent Olan Larue refuses to name leading candidates for the job but indicated that several men may be brought before the board for final approval.

One thing is definitely agreed upon as there will be two coaches to take up the work done by resigning Coach Jeff DeHaven. A separate basketball and football mentor will be named.

Stanky In Bed

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Eddie Stanky, second baseman for the Boston Braves, was ordered to stay in bed today when he developed a fever. It was Stanky's single in the sixth inning Friday that drove in the winning runs against Cincinnati.

Baseball, Track In Mansfield

By CHARLEY STINE

Senior high school's four-pronged spring sports program will come to a climax this week with district tournaments scheduled in baseball, golf, tennis and track.

The baseball and track tournaments will be held here while the golf team will journey to Findlay and the tennis squad to Bowling Green. The baseball and cindermen are both favorites in the district.

Senior high is defending champion in both sports. The Tyger thinclads have won six straight district titles while the diamond devotees have copped three in a row. New London has won three straight Mansfield district Class B titles.

FIRST IN PLAY

Coach Jim Lymper's diamond aggregation will be the first to step into tournament play, taking on the tough Ashland A's in the just opener at 4 p. m. Wednesday. All tournament games will be played at Blue Goose.

The Tygers split even in two regularly scheduled games with Ashland, winning the season opener, 3-2, and losing here last week, 4-3. Should the locals be able to get by the first game they should have little trouble with Galion and either Bucyrus or Willard.

Bucyrus and Willard, both holding first round byes, will meet in a semi-final game at 4 p. m, Thursday while Friday Galion, the other bye-holder will take on the Mansfield-Ashland winner. Finals are scheduled for 2 p. m. Saturday.

NEW PITCHER

Coach Lymper will be faced with the problem of calling on a new starting pitcher if the Tygers defeat Ashland. Thanks to a well-spaced schedule, Lou Gregorio has started all of the team's games to date. Shelly Swank has shown up well in five relief appearances, however, and will probably get the call in one of the games.

A warmup game for the joust will be played Monday when Senior high goes to Willard.

Approximately forty schools will send track teams here for both the Class A and B district meets Saturday. Ten A schools will compete. They are Bellevue, Norwalk, Bucyrus, Galion, Tiffin, Ashland, Port Clinton, Sandusky, Upper Sandusky and Mansfield.

17 IN CLASS B

Just what Class B schools will appear is not definite, but at least 17 have indicated their intention to participate. They include: Attica, Holmes-Liberty, Whetstone, Castalia, Green Springs, Harpster, Huron, Milan, Nevada, North Robinson, New London, New Washington, Old Fort, Sulphur Springs, Maiselles, Sycamore and Lucas.

Coach Harry Mehock's trackmen travel to Dayton Dunbar on May 12. The Tygers have not been beaten in a dual meet in two years but will be the underdog against Dunbar.

Long practice sessions are on the schedule for both the golfers and netmen early in the week. Coach V. H. Oberlander's linksmen will meet Shelby on a local course Thursday with scores here possibly deciding who will represent Senior high in the district-regional at Findlay.

FIGHT FOR FOURTH

Oberlander is sure of starting Tony Taddeo, Jim Chamberlain and Larry Inscore, but was undecided among Steve Demyan, Mike Oliveri and Ed Percy for the fourth spot.

The winning and runnerup schools will advance to the state finals. Results are tallied by means of adding the medal score of the four men of each school. Each man will play eighteen holes.

The low man of the tournament will also advance to the state to compete for individual honors.

NO EXPERIENCE

Lack of experience may prove disastrous to Fred Staub's tennis team which is competing in its first tournament. Three men—a doubles team and singles man—will represent the Tygers, although Staub is undecided just who his men will be.

TYGER ATHLETES — This quintet of Senior high school athletes will be competing in district meets this week-end. Upper left, Charles Marchant and Corky Perrine, regular outfielders, look over the bats. Upper right, A. C. Jenkins, sophx, goes over the low sticks. Lower left, Outfielder Phil Rogers grabs a high one. Lower right, Paul Hammond jogs around the Stadium field oval. Hammond placed in the district 880 last year. Senior High Nabs Second In Relays

CANTON—Mansfield Senior high school took second place in the seventh annual Canton McKinley night track and field relays here last night.

Canton McKinley, a team beaten easily by the Tygers in a dual meet, flashed its best form of the season to succeed Akron East as champions before 1,000 fans in Fawcett stadium. McKinley tallied 54 points, with Mansfield getting 36½ and Akron East, 33. The East club is the Akron city titleholder.

Coach Harry Mehock's Tygers placed in 11 events but could gain only one undisputed first place. Little Tommy Tucker won the broad jump with a leap of 21 feet, 3½ inches. Don Cline, another soph, tied for first in the pole vault with Phelps of Akron Buchtel. They soared 11 feet, 6 inches.

BAD LEG HURTS

Tucker's featured duels with J. V. Clifford state sprint champion, did not come off. The Tyger ebony flash is still bothered quite a bit with a pulled leg muscle. However, he managed a third place in the 100 and a fourth in the 220.

Clifford took the century in 10 seconds flat and raced the furlong in 22.7. Besides he anchored the McKinley 880-yard relay team to an easy first. The Tyger quartet of Johnny Bricker, Lou Gregorio, Bob Troll and Tucker was second.

Two more Bengal sophomores—A. C. Jenkins and Willie Fowler—placed in their specialties. Jenkins nabbed a third in the low hurdles and Fowler was third in the high jump with a leap of 5 feet, 9 inches. Jenkins qualified in the high sticks but ran sixth.

GETS TO FINALS

Big Burt Lindsay reached the finals in the shot and discus but won points only in the former event. He tossed the 12-pound iron sphere 48 feet, 7 inches. That's just five inches shy of his all-time Tyger mark but it was good only for fourth place.

Junior Paul Hammond and Marty Bricker were the only other Senior high individuals to place. Hammond took a third in the half-mile and Bricker was fourth in the low hurdles.

The Tyger mile relay team of Floyd Guegold, Kenny Cline, Chuck Eagleston and Fowler took a third while the shuttle hurdle foursome ended in fifth place. Marty Bricker, Paul Ferguson and George Russell gave Jenkins a slight lead. The Tyger anchor man increased the margin to five yards but hit the fifth hurdle to ruin his chances.

Here's how the other teams finished: Akron Buchtel, 24; Warren Harding, 18, Barberton, 17½; Niles, 16, Louisville, 15; Canton Lehman, 7; Youngstown Boardman, 6, Akron Garfield, 5, Akron South, 4 and Cuyahoga Falls, 3.

Fought Gets Starting Call For Mansfield Grays Nine

Dick Fought, young Shelby athlete, will be on the mound for the Mansfield Grays semi-pro baseball aggregation today when it opens its 1948 season against the strong Marion VFW club on the Blue Goose diamond at 2:30 p. m.

Fought will be one of the three newcomers in the starting lineup announced last night by Manager Lefty Deeds. Fought is an American Legion graduate. The other new faces are: Kenny Funk, former Ashland college all-Ohio grid back, and Dick Burton. Both are infielders.

The veteran Merle Leedy and Jack Hammett, Ohio State frontline chucker, will also be available for hillock chores today. This is Leedy's third season with the Grays.

The Mansfield batting order follows: Funk, 2b, Russ Leedy, rf, Wilbur Wade, c, Foster Burgraf, ss, Red Hamman, 3b, Dubby Lockhart, lf, Bob Bogantz or Jim Meeting, cf, Burton, 1b and Fought, p.

WADE CONVERTED

Wade, an outfielder last year, has been converted into a catcher to keep his big bat in the lineup. Tick Hamilton and John Heckert are the other backstops.

The cream of Marion's baseball crop makes up the VFW roster. Players were picked up from Smitty's Grill and the Schlairet Transfer teams which disbanded after the 1947 season. Smitty's Grill was undefeated last year.

It will be the first semi-pro test in the renovated Blue Goose park which serves as home base for the Grays and the Mansfield Senior high club. Heckert, who doubles as business manager, has scheduled 25 games for the Grays.

PRACTICE GAME

The Ohio Sports Center softball team will play at a practice game with the Sons of Herman today at 1:30 p. m. at Liberty park.

Fesler Impressed With Ohio State's Grid Antics In Spring Game

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio State put its 1948 football team on display yesterday in the annual intrasquad clinic game, and at the finish head Coach Wesley Fesler said:

"We'll be a much better football team next fall than we were last year. Our line is improved 100 per cent."

Emphasizing the single-wing offense, instead of the "T" from which the Bucks moved in 1947, the "Red" squad made up of the first and fourth stringers scored a 27 to 0 victory over the "Whites," composed of the second and third choices.

Dick Slager of Columbus; quarterback last season, was the hot-shot of the Red offense, moved to left half to handle the running-passing chores. Slager did well with his ball-lugging and tossed three touchdown passes, all to Bob Dorsey, Negro end from Houston, Tex.

The other Red touchdown came on a two-yard plunge over tackle by quarterback Pandel Savic of Girard. Slager had carried the ball 11 yards to the two after tackle Bill Trauawein of Athens had blocked a punt and Dorsey had recovered.

All the scoring came in the last two periods, but the Reds showed flashes of air power just before the first half ended. Starting from deep in their own territory, the Reds took to the airlanes for 57 yards in the three tries as Slager hit end Tom Watson of Urbana for 19 yards, Dorsey for 23 and Cavic for 15, before Rod Swinhart, White halfback intercepted the fourth toss behind the goal line with 12 seconds to go.

Slager's touchdown passes to Dorsey, all bullet-like heaves, went for 10, 15 and 46 yards, the latter catching the White defense napping as the speedy Texan outran the secondary to take the ball in the clear.

Trautwein, son of Ohio university Coach "Big Bill" Trautwein, former Wittenberg star, stood out on the Red forward wall. In addition to his usual chores, the freshman blocked the kick which led to the second touchdown, and once he tore through the line to toss George Wertz of Piqua, White quarterback, for an 18-yard loss on an attempted pass.

Among the highlights was the way Jerry Krall performed. The Toledo halfback was out last year with a bad knee, but he wore a brace today and ran with his old-time speed and elusiveness.

Quarterback Pete Perini and halfback Alex Verdova, almost certain starters in the fall, did not take part in the game because of baseball duties. The same reason kept Bill Newell, another right halfback, out of the contest.

Absent because of injuries were Sherwin Gandee, freshman end from Akron who is a cinch to start at the left wing, veteran ends Jimmy Hague and Dale Bonnie; and backs Mike Cannavino, Joe Whisler and George Gordon, all lettermen.

About 15,000 fans including several hundred high school coaches, sat in on the contest.

Fervent Defeats Stymie In Dixie

BALTIMORE —(AP)— Calumet Farm's Fervent scampered home first in the Dixie handicap yesterday to beat a field of eight other seasoned campaigners. Stymie was second.

A crowd of 20,000 saw the 41th running of the handicap in which Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' big-time money winner, Stymie, made a stretch bid and failed.

There was a photo finish for third place with Joseph Tucci's Incline getting the nod over King Ranch's Contest.

To most hunters bagging five wild squirrels in one day is quite a chore and when Tom Hopkins does just that it is an amazing feat.

And why is it so unusual for a man to bag that many bushytail?

Well, this Paden, Oklahoma man is blind and he hunts by ear with a .22 caliber rifle

Hopkins hunts alone except for three well-trained dogs that help him get his four or five squirrels in his game bag.

And how does he do it?

Let Juanita Mahaffey of the state fish and game department, who has known Hopkins for years, tell you:

"The dogs smell the squirrels out and give forth with vociferous barking when the game is treed.

"Tom just listens when the dogs bark and soon he gets the bead on the jumpy squirrel by sound alone.

"Between times he target practices on tin cans

"He'll step off 20 paces, ask an assistant to drop a pebble on the can to give him the sound, and on a still day, he seldom misses.

"That, as anyone with good eyesight, who has ever practiced with a .22 rifle can tell you, is good shooting."

Hopkins, blinded when a horse kicked him in 1919 when he was 17, does not confine his hunting to squirrels.

In winter months, during fur season, he goes after oppossums, skunks, raccoons and minks.

Even with the prices down last winter he sold more than $100 worth of furs.

Once he got lost.

"I was up on Hilleby creek," he recounted, "and when I realized I was lost, I started out of the timber.

"I came to a low-hanging limb, felt it, and kept going.

"About an hour later I came to that same limb and then I knew what I'd always heard was true—a lost person travels in a circle.

"I finally came to a farm house and had to ask the owner to take me home."

Hopkins laughs over that and other misfortunes which he accepts as part of the game.

In addition to hunting, he enjoys fishing One form "noodling" which consists of hand fishing under rocky ledges along a stream bank, is his favorite

He now goes with friends when fishing, however.

He was bitten last summer by a poisonous water moccasin while alone.

It didn't make him very sick nor did he suffer much from the snake bite but it taught him the danger of fishing alone

Out in Alamosa Colorado there's a man who proves doesn't pay as much faith in dogs as does Tom Hopkins

Anton Nielsen 61-year-old farmer, was crossing a field with his dog when a rabbit appeared. The dog gave chase. Both animals raced between the farmer's legs. The farmer wound up with a broken leg and the dog and rabbit continued the merry chase.

We didn't interview the farmer but it's probable for certain that the next time Tony goes hunting he will eat a few dog biscuits and run 'em hard!

★

Switching to fishing prospects for the Ohio angler this weekend, the prize spot appeared to be the Pleasant Hill reservoir in Richland county near Mansfield.

Fishermen there last week caught an average of three fish per hour with the crappie making up 75 per cent of the haul. About 10 per cent bullheads and some miscellaneous species made up the rest of the catch.

A round-up of other lakes compiled from conservation division records showed Buckeye lake fishing to be poor at a little over one fish per hour being caught per fisherman; North Reservoir near Akron was fair at one fish per hour average, and Madison lake in Ashland county was poor. This is only the second fishing season for Madison, it being one of the new headwater lakes just created by the division.

MAL'S MUTTERS . . .

Once again the Mutterer takes his tongue in cheek to give out some of his lip. That's sayin' a mouthful.

There must be a catch to it: Apparently the fish at Pleasant Hill dam are so considerate they send out advance notice that they'll be biting this week-end . . . as indicated above

Conservation Tip — Keep your "waste" line thin.

Lem Lunk says: Reason most wimmin ain't good fishermen is they're overconfident. They think fish are as easy to hook as men.

There's sadness in store for the guy who's trigger happy.

Newhouser Fails Again As Starter

NEW YORK —(AP)— A chilled crowd of 25,246 fans saw Lefty Hal Newhouser, pride of Detroit's pitching staff, suffer his fourth setback as the New York Yankees split a doubleheader with the Tigers yesterday.

After bowing to Freddie Hutchinson's sixhit pitching 3-2 in the opened, the Yankees climbed all over Newhouser to win the second game 9-1.

A seven-run inning finished Newhouser. Until then the unfortunate southpaw had waged a keen pitching duel with righthander Vic Raschi. A triple by Joe Dimaggio with two mates aboard in the sixth chased two runs over for the Yanks and ended a scoreless duel.

The Yankees chased Newhouser without hitting the ball out of the infield. Billy Johnson opened the seventh by beating out an infield single to short. Gus Niarhos walked and George Stirnweiss beat out a drag bunt to fill the bases. Neil Berry messed up a double play grounder to let in one run.

WALKS A PAIR

When Newhouser walked Bobby Brown and Tommy Henrich to force two more runs over the plate, he was through. Singles by Johnny Lindell and Johnson off reliefers Al Benton and Stubby Overmire concluded the rally.

The Tigers' lone run came in the eighth when Pat Mullin socked his second home run of the day. Mullin's first, in the ninth inning of the opener, proved to be the deciding run as the Yankees, trailing 3-0, came back with a pair of runs in their half of the ninth on Yogi Berra's two-run homer.

The Tigers were dealt a serious blow when third baseman George Kell suffered a fractured right wrist when hit by a pitched ball in the fourth inning. He is expected to be out for three to four weeks.

Herman Barron Runs Off With Goodall Golf Honors

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y. —(AP)— Herman Barron, 39-year-old professional of White Plains, N. Y., ran off and hid from 15 of his fellow money players yesterday in the Goodall Round Robin Golf tournament.

With only one round remaining to be played, the chunky veteran was 17 points ahead of his closest rival, Bob Hamilton, last night, and it was conceded that he couldn't be stopped by anything short of a deer rifle.

In four rounds of match play, Barron had shot 70-69-71-71 in dazzling succession over the par 72 Wykagyl country club course. He had built up a "plus" total of 39 points—meaning he had won that many more holes than he had lost in man-to-man competition against the world's finest golfers.

Hamilton, now golfing from Landover, Md., had turned in rounds of 69-72-71-72 and owned a standing of plus 22. His chances of catching the fleeting Barron in today's closing round were, obviously, nothing to write home about.

The foreign threat of Bobby Locke faded abruptly. The South American Beauty, was tied in the next slot with Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, the first day's leader, with equal totals of plus 18. Ben Hogan, one of the greatest, stood plus 13. Jim Ferrier, the former Australian, had a plus 9 rating.

Herman Keiser of Akron, O., had minus 3.

Actor Bill Bendix is playing Ruth in the movie. Lefty Gomez, former Yankee star will play the part of Washington Pitcher Tom Zachary and Bucky Harris, Yankee manager, will appear as a second baseman in today's action Both Gomez and Harris will be outfitted in Washington uniforms.

The shots will include Ruth's 60th home run, hit in the stadium against Zachary on Sept. 30, 1927.

Sluggers Star

KANSAS CITY — (AP) — Three Louisville pitchers failed to cope with sluggers Dick Kryhoski and Flip Rosen yesterday and the Colonels took an 11 to 3 lacing from the Kansas City Blues. Kryhoski slammed out four hits in five tries and Rosen chipped in a home run and a single.

Reds Lose 3-2 Tilt To Boston Braves

CINCINNATI —(AP)— The Boston Braves took advantage of a walk and a lapse in the Cincinnati defense yesterday to score three runs in the eighth inning and shade the Reds 3-2.

Johnny Vander Meer, pitching air tight ball, allowed the Braves only four hits through the first seven innings and held a 2-0 lead as Boston came to bat in the eighth.

Danny Litwhiler, batting for winning pitcher Red Barrett, started things with a walk and then Sebastian Sisti, running for Litwhiler, moved over to third on Alvin Dark's single. A ground out by pinch batter Frank McCormick scored Sisti and Dark came in with the tying run as Red Stallcup, Cincinnati shortstop, fumbled Jim Russell's grounder. Clint Conaster then singled Russell home with the winning marker.

The Reds, now just 14 percentage points out of last place, scored in the first inning on a walk, two hits and a fly out. They added another in the fifth on two hits, spaced by a sacrifice.
